A helper on the road

Pink supported edition

A story Jesus told.
Christians read it in the Gospel of Luke.

This is an original simple retelling.

First

Jesus told a story about a man on a journey. Some people hurt the man and took his things. He lay by the road. He needed help.

Two people saw him. They went past.

The man needed help.

Then

Then a helper came. He was from a group that some people did not like. He saw the hurt man and stopped. He cared for the man’s wounds. He took him to a place where he could rest. The helper paid for his care.

The helper stopped to help.

At the end

Jesus used the story to ask who had acted like a good neighbour. The one who helped had shown care.

The story asks people to care for someone in need, even if that person is different from them.

Many Christians learn about care from this story.

People with other beliefs, or no religious belief, may value care too.

The helper showed care.
