Staff answers and response guide

Feelings and body clues

These are teaching guides. Record the learner's actual response and support. All cards describe fictional young people, families and support roles. Never invite personal comparisons.

Card key

Card	Judgement	Possible action
A	Tense or worried could fit. Pause and ask for help.	Use the stated difficulty and tight hands. Accept a question or a small-step request with a reason.
B	Unsure or tense could fit. Ask a question or seek help.	The key need is the unclear next step. Do not demand the exact emotion word.
C	Calm or comfortable could fit. Continue by choice, with help available.	Comfort is supported by the person's words. The body clue alone would not prove it.
D	Excited, worried or unsure could fit. Ask or pause if wanted.	There is no single correct feeling. The context and the person's own words matter.
E	A helpful response that respects choice.	The pause is not a punishment or something to earn.
F	Ask another trusted adult or use the agreed help route.	A first unsuccessful request does not mean the person must stop seeking help.

Model and hinge

A young person says the task feels hard. Their hands feel tight in this story. They may feel tense or unsure. They could ask for a short pause. Then an adult could show one step. A clue does not prove how all people feel.

A is a helpful response to the stated difficulty. B ignores the request for support. C treats an appearance as proof. Tension, a warm face or a fast heartbeat can have different meanings. Do not diagnose or ask learners to check their own bodies. Reteach with the uncertain-instruction card: a question or step-by-step help can fit.

Individual evidence key

Record two distinct scenarios, a possible feeling and a stated clue for each, a helpful response and the learner's reason. At least one response identifies a help or pause action. Do not score by matching a face to one fixed emotion. Record exact prompts and later changes. No personal disclosure or demonstration of a bodily response is evidence required by this lesson.

Lesson resource · CC BY-NC-SA 4.0: free for classroom use, share and adapt with credit, no resale

Feedback and next teaching

Practical check

Use two different stories, normally A and B. Keep the feeling word, stated clue, help choice and reason for each. Accept more than one plausible feeling. C explores comfort; D demonstrates that a fast heartbeat does not identify one feeling. Card E models a helpful adult response. F supplies a further help route.

Common misunderstandings

A body clue can have more than one meaning. People can feel differently in the same situation. Feeling calm does not prove that a situation is safe, and feeling tense does not prove danger. The task is to consider the story and a helpful response, not diagnose or test a body.

Teaching boundary

Every teaching prompt concerns a fictional young person. Never ask learners about their own bodies, families or experiences, or use a real person as the case. Read fictional cards without inviting comparison with home. No touching, body checking, forced eye contact, acting out distress or personal role-play. Allow a pass, quiet response or pause. If a learner raises a personal concern, follow the setting’s safeguarding procedure; do not turn the disclosure into lesson evidence. Staff use the setting’s agreed support arrangements.

Feedback and follow-up

Use VF · WS · I · NS+ (Yellow Box) · // self-edit · ? read back · R responded · E evidence in the evidence record. R requires Voice, Audience, a specific NS+ prompt and the learner response in their own colour. E is recorded only when actual work is banked. Record prompts and unfinished work. Blank sheets and adult models are not completed learner evidence.

If work is incomplete, name the gap and arrange a supported follow-up. No qualification completion is claimed.

Lesson resource · CC BY-NC-SA 4.0: free for classroom use, share and adapt with credit, no resale