Two ways to show your thinking

Use a book or Type instead on the next page. An adult can read or record your words. All worked examples are invented.

Choice 1 Next step map
Use story B on Support Card 2. Make a map that explains resilience and the difficulty. Add one helpful step with a reason, a realistic learning line and a private help route.

Choice 2 Support note
Use story C on Support Card 3. Write a short note to the story person. Include the same parts. Keep the note about the invented person.

Shared success checks
Explain resilience. Give one useful way forward and say why it fits the difficulty. Show a learning line with a real next step. Add where the person can ask for help.

Words and starters
resilience · feedback · next step · practise · support

“Resilience means ... .” “The hard part is ... .”

“One useful step is ... . It may help because ... .”

“They have not ... yet. They can ... .”

Visible model from A
Resilience means finding a way forward when things are hard, with support if needed. The stand falls over. An adult can show a wider fold. They can try it because the feedback is about the base. “I have not made it stand yet. I can learn a wider fold.”

Private help
Point to HELP, write a request or ask for a private talk. Use a trusted adult or the school’s help route. You may pass or take a supported pause.

Type instead

This optional page is for use on screen. Choose the map or support note. Both have the same learning goal. No private personal story is needed.

For a map, use the blank cells. For a note, use the Support note if chosen cell with the same prompts.
