Staff checks for historical evaluation

Humanities | LAUNCH | Spring 1 Week 6 | HUM-LAUNCH-S1-W06

E1–E6 are new factual teaching summaries based on accepted earlier lessons. No old text, image or person's account is copied. No survivor testimony is reproduced, paraphrased, invented or composited. These cards are an evidence bank, not primary-source extracts.

Causes and trigger

E1 supports treaty resentment as one background factor and Nazi choices as active causes. E2 shows concessions failing to stop expansion, then the invasion of Poland on 1 September 1939 as the immediate trigger. Britain and France declared war on 3 September. Accept different reasoned weightings with accurate evidence; do not accept inevitability, collective blame or a claim that one factor explains everything.

Rights in Germany

E3: 7 April 1933 state employment, initial exceptions and effects on income/work. E4: 15 September 1935 laws with later rules removed citizenship rights; November 1938 barred Jewish pupils from public schools. Explain changing access to work, legal/political rights and education. These examples are Germany-specific, not a single Europe-wide rule on one date.

Consequences and remembrance

E5 supports non-graphic explanation of harm to full lives, work, education and social ties, and losses to communities. The Holocaust was Nazi-led persecution and murder of six million European Jews; allies and collaborators took part. Other groups' experiences differed. Do not reduce people to a number or present genocide as an automatic consequence of each restriction.

E6 supports remembrance of people, careful learning and shared responsibility. The UK day is 27 January annually. A ceremony/day cannot stop hatred alone. Safe learner actions include checking claims and trusted adult help, not confrontation or a pledge.

Evaluation quality

Look for a supported judgement about different roles, effects or significance. A date list is not sufficient. Do not rank suffering, reward emotional claims or require a fixed length. Accept careful concise work in the learner's own mode.

Review model and assessment limits

Model after the first attempt

Rights in Germany were removed in steps. The law of 7 April 1933 began to remove Jewish people from state jobs. Some early exceptions existed (E3). Laws passed on 15 September 1935 and later rules removed citizenship rights. In November 1938, Jewish pupils were barred from public schools (E4). Loss of work could remove income. School exclusion harmed learning and social ties. The pattern matters because it shows repeated human choices. However, these are examples from Germany, not all of Europe.

Review model only. This paragraph is newly written by the lesson author, not a historical person's voice. Keep it covered until the first attempt is retained. Compare its use of date, place, effect and limit; do not copy it as evidence of independent understanding. Record any later revision as supported follow-up.

What the model does

It places three rights stages in Germany, names effects and explains the significance of repeated choices, then limits its geographical scope. It covers one section only. It does not answer causes, wider consequences and remembrance for the learner. Show only after retaining the first attempt; a copied paragraph cannot be independent evidence.

Which answer is an evaluation? A: A list of dates with no reasons. B: A judgement using evidence, explained links and a limit. C: A statement that everyone must feel the same sadness.

B, with a reason about evidence and judgement. A is chronology without weighing. C assesses emotion rather than understanding. If needed, rephrase the method without supplying a historical answer. Record any reasoning support before the first attempt.

A response says one restriction happened before another, so the later harm was inevitable. Does order alone prove that? No. Ask for evidence, human choices and a limit. Record any prompt that supplies the judgement.

Six outcome review

Keep all six exact outcomes and blank ticks/comments. Tick only evidence seen; a tick is not automatic full completion. Use comments for date/work reference, actual mode, help, scope, gaps and next step. Review earlier work in place; do not upload or duplicate the private memorial.

Week 3's exact archive-worded outcome stays on the grid, but prior evidence concerns method on neutral invented records and general discussion. Do not claim a live archive or an actual survivor account was evaluated. Week 5 is a planned private layout, not software operation or publication. Record scope and any not-yet-evidenced elements.

Offer to the Communication portfolio as paper or offline work only. Retain the first attempt, response mode and actual help before showing the model. An adult replies with one NS (next step). The learner responds in the same colour, on the same page or usual mode before R. Label any model-informed revision as supported follow-up. Record the work location offline. Leave E unmarked; no evidence-app use, publication, sharing, export or upload. A partner's work is not both learners' evidence.

Care support and offline follow up

Tuesday 9 February 2027 | P2 | 40 minutes | Year A

Humanities | LAUNCH | Spring 1 Week 6 | HUM-LAUNCH-S1-W06

What to retain

In your book or a plain offline document, plan and write your own evaluation under four headings: causes of the conflict; rights removed step by step; consequences; why we remember. Weigh two causes and distinguish the trigger. Explain three dated rights steps in Germany and their effects. Explain harm and loss with dignity. Give a reason for remembrance, a safe responsibility and a limit. Use card codes and your own reasons. Keep the first attempt before the model and a later edit. No word target is set.

Record which banks, frames and prompts were used. Exact adult reading is access; supplied reasons and judgements are reasoning help. Keep initial work distinct from supported follow-up. A partner answer or neutral task is not individual assessment evidence.

Care

Agree a discreet PAUSE signal, supervising adult, quiet place and private return check before teaching. Keep both learners supervised. If a sole adult cannot supervise separate spaces, use a calm place in the room or pause the whole group while seeking usual support. Never send a learner away alone.

For distress, stop the demand, acknowledge it calmly and offer the agreed route without sanction or a public explanation. Do not probe or insist on a history recap while the learner is upset. Follow the school’s existing safeguarding arrangements for disclosures and use the appropriate private record.

Interrupt antisemitism calmly and firmly. Name the harm without repeating a slur. Hostility towards Jewish people is unacceptable. Correct a falsehood briefly and follow school procedures. Do not debate Holocaust denial or require learners to defend victims’ rights. Victims were not responsible for their persecution.

For flippancy or laughter, stop and reset respectful listening. A nervous response is possible, but harm still needs addressing. Follow up privately, check those affected and use existing procedures for targeted, repeated or serious incidents. Avoid shaming or guessing motives.

Offer the neutral quiet task and a private readiness check. It is not evidence of the evaluation outcome. Record deferred work honestly and offer a later supported return. A partner’s answer, attendance, emotional display or copied model does not establish understanding.

Keep current writing and earlier memorial work private, on paper or in a plain offline document. Do not create accounts, use online tools, search for pictures, publish, share, export or upload work, including to an evidence app. Record the work location offline and leave E unmarked. The earlier memorial plan is reviewed in place if needed; do not reproduce it in this evaluation.

Quiet answer: 08:30 reading, 10:00 break, 12:00 lunch, 14:00 club; pencil/book and cup/plate by use. Keep supervision and private re-entry.

Source and boundary

Facts were checked against verified accepted Weeks 1–5. All teaching summaries and the model are newly written. No raw earlier source register, individual victim name, testimony, imagery, named resource organisation/title or website address is redistributed. No extra content or live archive is needed.
