Case sources

Use the case detail. A made-up case is not a real person's story.

Made-up case: A person bumps a table by mistake. A stack of someone else's paper falls.

The person says, "I am sorry I knocked your paper down." They ask if help is wanted. The owner says yes. The person helps stack the paper.

The owner does not have to say it is fine or forgive. They may still feel upset. No one has to share a real mistake.
