Story A Shop work to office learning

Invented career stories prepared 30 October 2026. No real person, employer, place or course is described.

Stage	What happened	Story detail
1	Shop work	A shop assistant checks orders and asks clear questions when details are missing. These skills help avoid mistakes.
2	A role ends	The business changes and the role ends. This is redundancy. The worker has to look for another route. The story gives no sign that poor work caused it.
3	Care and support	The worker has caring duties and cannot attend an all-day class. An adviser helps compare course times. A shorter class fits the hours available. The worker chooses it.
4	A new direction	The worker starts an office course. They use clear questions and careful checks on a sample booking record. They plan to apply for office work. No job offer is stated.

Clues to analyse

Find a choice, a setback, some support and a skill used again. Say how two factors changed the journey. Use stage numbers as clues.

What remains open

The course is a next step, not a promised job. Class times, advice and other support may differ in real life.

These are story events, not claims about all workers. Read and discuss only. No personal history or practical work task is needed.

Story B Stock work to repair learning

Invented career stories prepared 30 October 2026. No real person, employer, place or course is described.

Stage	What happened	Story detail
1	Stock work	A stock worker checks item codes against a list. They keep clear records and ask about a mismatch.
2	A health change	A health change means the worker pauses work. They need time and support to consider suitable work. The story gives no health details.
3	A move	Later, the worker moves to another area. The old journey to work is no longer practical. An adviser helps compare local options and travel.
4	A changed interest	The worker finds an interest in repair work and chooses an introductory repair course. A tutor breaks learning into short steps and agrees time for questions.
5	Skills used again	On a paper repair plan, the learner checks a parts list and keeps a clear record. Skills from stock work help with this new task. The learner plans to ask about further training. No job or place is promised.

Clues to analyse

Find a choice, a setback, some support and a skill used again. Say how two factors changed the journey. Use stage numbers as clues.

What remains open

Support can help, but suitable work and courses may not be available. A change of direction does not guarantee a job.

These are story events, not claims about all workers. Read and discuss only. No personal history or practical work task is needed.

Guide to the four categories

Category	Meaning	Question to ask
Decision	A choice a person makes.	What was chosen, and why?
Setback	Something that makes a plan harder.	What changed or became difficult?
Support	Help, time or resources a person can use.	What help was given, and how did it help?
Transferable skill	A skill that can be used in another task.	Where was it used before and where is it used now?

How to annotate a timeline

1. Put the stages in order. 2. Mark a point where the route changes. 3. Add a category and clue. 4. Explain the effect with because. 5. Show a skill used before and again.

A stage may fit more than one category. Give a reason. What happens next is not always caused by the event before it.

Words to help

“At stage ... .” “The worker chose ... .” “This made the plan harder because ... .” “The help was ... .” “The same skill was used in ... and ... .”

Use a short pause, a reader, a scribe or your usual aid. Plan in any language. A private question to a trusted adult is always allowed.

A model and short choices

Model from story A

At stage 2, the business changes and the role ends. This is a setback. It means the worker needs to seek another route. The story does not say that the worker did poor work.

The model shows a clue and an effect. Now look at class times, advice and the skill used again. Use your own words.

Floor choices

Use story A. An adult may read or scribe your choices.

Check	Choices
Decision	A: Chooses a shorter class. B: The business changes.
Setback	A: The shop role ends. B: The worker asks a clear question.
Support	A: A job is promised. B: An adviser helps compare times.
Skill used again	A: Checks orders, then a booking record. B: All tasks are the same.
Caring factor	A: It has no effect. B: It affects the class times that fit.
Future step	A: A job is still not confirmed. B: A course guarantees a job.

Choices alone are not the full task. Add clues and effects. Explain two influences and the skill before and after. Keep the story label.

Changes and useful responses

Change in the stories	Possible response shown	Limit to keep
Redundancy	Seek advice and compare another route.	A role ending does not prove poor effort.
Caring duties	Compare class times with time available.	A suitable class may not be available.
Health change	Pause and consider suitable work with support.	No health detail or treatment is given.
Relocation	Check other options and travel.	Moving does not promise a new job.
Changing interests	Try learning about another area of work.	New skills and entry checks may be needed.

Resilience

Resilience can mean asking for help, taking time, learning or changing a plan. It does not mean ignoring a barrier or always coping alone.

Setbacks can be hard and can cost time or money. Support and opportunities are not the same for everyone. Effort can help, but it does not control every outcome.

Private help

Keep the discussion about the stories. You do not need to share a personal or family event. Ask a trusted adult privately or use the school’s help route if the topic is hard. You may pause and return with support.

Adult key and evidence check

Keep this page apart from first responses. Record the learner’s own thinking before giving the key.

Check	Answer and reason
Decision	A: Choosing the shorter class is a choice.
Setback	A: The role ending makes the plan harder.
Support	B: Advice helps the worker compare class times.
Skill used again	A: Careful checking is used in two tasks.
Caring factor	B: Caring affects when the worker can attend.
Future step	A: The story gives no job offer.

Floor key A, A, B, A, B, A. Ask for a stage clue and an effect. Check all four categories and two factors. A category label or choice alone is partial.

Accept more than one category at a stage if the learner gives a sound reason. Keep fact and inference apart. A planned step is not a completed result. No need to share a personal setback.
