Staff checks and model answers

Arrival

A review written today must use today’s date. Earlier work keeps its original date where known.

Starter

A feasible next step names something to do. Try a softer start is clearer than be the best.

I do

Check: Who owns the review, the adult who writes or the pupil whose ideas it records? The pupil. Ask them to correct the example.

We do

If A is chosen, ask a parallel check: Can a blank folder show the change we want to review? No. We can make a truthful note and choose a next step.

Create

A valid entry can be: I used colour for a calm idea. I changed a gap after my review. I learned to test a choice. Next I will try a bigger shape. The pupil must supply their own true details.

Review

The assessment is of what the evidence shows and what the pupil can explain. Handwriting, speech volume and public confidence are not arts success criteria.

Exit

Completed teaching, completed evidence and an award decision are different. Keep each statement true.

Misconceptions and evidence

An adult scribe means it is not my review.

The ideas remain yours when the adult records your words, reads them back and notes the help.

A tick means the whole award is complete.

The grid records these six weekly outcomes only. Wider requirements and genuine evidence need a separate judgement.

A good review says everything was perfect.

Name a real strength, change or learning point and an achievable next step.

Cold call with choice of response

Foundation: Point to the source or piece you used.

Middle: What does this feature tell you?

Higher: Which evidence supports your view, and what remains uncertain?

Evidence rule

Keep the pupil’s dated own-word review or research, actual source or work reference, accurate support and the six-outcome tick-and-comment grid. Mark missing or unfinished evidence honestly. No completed award is inferred.
