Access and encounter variants

Creative Arts Spring 1 Week 6 Year A Explore

The core route uses classroom work and printed research notes. It does not require a visit, public performance or new encounter.

Quiet research route

An adult reads the chosen note aloud in short parts. The pupil explains the meaning in their own words and checks it. Record the printed source label and title rather than claiming a website visit.

Private sharing

The pupil may explain research to one adult or a freely chosen listener. Keep the actual date, content and response. If declined or unfinished, mark sharing pending. Do not invent a peer response or future event.

No materials available

Use oral or signed review and research, with precise witness observations. Record confirmed words at the next opportunity and keep written transcription pending until it exists.

A different artist or performer

A pupil may choose another long-established public artist or performer if an adult supplies and checks an appropriate factual source first. Keep the same career, work, source, own-word response and actual sharing fields. No private individual, personal contact, copied artwork or website address belongs in the pupil pack.
