Staff answers and response guide

People who care

These are teaching guides. Record the learner's actual response and support. All cards describe fictional young people, families and support roles. Never invite personal comparisons.

Card key

Card	Judgement	Possible action
A	Listen and give time.	Caring action: the adult lets the person finish and checks what help is wanted.
B	Show one small step.	Caring action: help with the stated need, without taking over every choice.
C	Give space and stay ready to help.	Caring action: respect space; no forced touch or demand for a private reason.
D	Not a caring response in this story.	Replace laughter with listening and a useful reply.
E	This does not respect their choice.	Ask what help is wanted and offer a supported choice.
F	Ask another trusted adult.	The support map supplies a tutor and a support adult. Keep the request available for a follow-up.

Model and hinge

A young person needs help with a task. A tutor listens to their question. The tutor shows one small step. This act can show care. The young person can ask once more. The tutor checks what help is wanted.

A is supported by the caring action. B is unkind. C removes choice rather than checking what help is wanted. An adult's role alone does not prove that an action is caring. Reteach with the card about waiting while a person speaks; ask what that action allows.

Individual evidence key

Record the actual situation and caring-action match, a map linking the fictional young person to at least one appropriate support role, and the learner's explanation. The two supplied roles allow a further help route. Record prompts, mode and what remains unshown. Do not require the learner to list or identify anyone in their own life.

Feedback and next teaching

Practical check

The map begins with the fictional young person who needs help to start a task. A tutor can show one step. A support adult can help ask a question or find another agreed help route. Accept one appropriate role for the core map; the second route extends the response. Do not ask for real names, family lists or contact details.

Common misunderstandings

Family structure does not tell us how much care a person receives. Caring relationships can take different forms. Care is shown through actions, not appearance, gifts or an adult's title. A young person can ask for more help if one response does not meet the need.

Teaching boundary

Every teaching prompt concerns a fictional young person. Never ask learners about their own bodies, families or experiences, or use a real person as the case. Read fictional cards without inviting comparison with home. No touching, body checking, forced eye contact, acting out distress or personal role-play. Allow a pass, quiet response or pause. If a learner raises a personal concern, follow the setting's safeguarding procedure; do not turn the disclosure into lesson evidence. Staff use the setting's agreed support arrangements.

Feedback and follow-up

Use VF · WS · I · NS+ · // self-edit · ? read back · R responded · E evidence in the evidence record. R requires Voice, Audience, a specific NS+ prompt and the learner response in the same colour, on the same page or usual mode. E is recorded only when actual work is banked. Record prompts and unfinished work. Blank sheets and adult models are not completed learner evidence.

If work is incomplete, name the gap and arrange a supported follow-up. No qualification completion is claimed.
