Two ways to show your thinking

Use a book or choose Type instead on the next page. An adult can read or write your words. These stories are made up.

Choice 1 Case map
Use story B on Support Card 2. Make a map with four parts: emotion and clue; healthy way 1 and why; healthy way 2 and why; a private help route.

Choice 2 Advice note
Use story C on Support Card 3. Write a short note to the young person. Include the same four parts. Keep the note about the story.

Shared success checks
1. Name the emotion and use a clue from the story. 2. Choose two healthy ways that fit the pressure. Say why each may help. 3. Give a private help route. You do not need to promise that stress will go away.

Words and starters
worried · frustrated · pressure · pause · plan · support

“They may feel ... . My clue is ... .”

“One healthy way is ... . It may help because ... .”

“Another way is ... . They can ask ... in private.”

Visible model from A
They feel worried. They say they do not know where to start. One small step can make the task clear. A trusted adult can help agree what comes first. They can ask for a private talk.

Private help
Point to HELP, write a request or say “Can we talk in private?” Use a trusted adult or the school’s help route. You may pass or pause.

Type instead

This optional page is for use on screen. Choose the case map or advice note. Both have the same goal. Do not put a private personal story here.

Use the blank cells for a case map. For an advice note, use the cell labelled Advice note if chosen. Use the same prompts.

Choice and story letter
Emotion and story clue
Healthy way 1 and why it may help
Healthy way 2 and why it may help
A private help route
Advice note if chosen
One next step and my reply

Words: worried, frustrated, pressure, plan, pause, help.

Start: “They may feel ... because ... . One way is ... . Another is ... .”

Model from A: “They feel worried. A small step can make the task clear. An adult can help agree what comes first.”

Save using the usual routine, the lesson code and a work reference. Share with the adult privately. You can use a book, an aid or a scribe instead.
