Card 1 Model and guided choices

All worked examples are invented. You may point, write, type or use a scribe. No personal story is needed.

Two starter choices
A story learner has too many instructions. Choose “ask for one step” or “hide the problem”. Or explain why asking for one step may help.

Story A
A young person folds a card stand. It falls over after two tries. They say, “I always get this wrong.” An adult says, “The base needs a wider fold.”

Visible model
Resilience means finding a way forward when things are hard, with support if needed. The stand falls over. An adult can show a wider fold. The young person can try it because the feedback is about the base.

Learning line: “I have not made it stand yet. I can learn a wider fold.”

Two guided choices
Match “a wider fold” to one next step: change the base or use the same fold. Or improve “Just try harder in the same way” with a useful step and a reason.

Words and starters
resilience · feedback · change · step · support

“The feedback says ... . One useful step is ... because ... .”

Use A as a model. A trusted adult can help in private. You may pass or pause.

Card 2 Choice 1 Next step map

Story B

A young person draws a shape pattern. The last part does not match the model after two tries. They say, “I will never do patterns.” Feedback says, “Compare one shape at a time.”

Your choice

Make a next step map in your book or use Type instead. Explain resilience and the hard part. Add one useful step with a reason, a realistic learning line and a private help route.

Words and starters

pattern · compare · one shape · feedback · support

“Resilience means ... . The hard part is ... .”

“One useful step is ... because ... .”

“They have not ... yet. They can ... .”

Visible model from A

Resilience means finding a way forward when things are hard, with support if needed. A can ask for a wider-fold model and try a changed base. It uses the feedback.

Check the fit

Use the feedback in B. Card 4 has useful ways forward. A learning line needs a real next step. It does not promise that every try will work.

You may switch to the support note for C. Both meet the same goal. Ask a trusted adult in private for help.

Card 3 Choice 2 Support note

Story C
A young person explains an invented sorting task. The listener cannot follow the order. They say, “I am no good at explaining.” Feedback says, “Give the first step, then pause.”

Your choice
Write a short support note in a book or use Type instead. Explain resilience and the hard part. Give one useful step with a reason, a realistic learning line and a private help route.

Words and starters
explain · first step · pause · practise · feedback

“Resilience means ... . One hard part is ... .”

“You could ... . This may help because ... .”

“You have not ... yet. You can ... .”

Visible model from A
Resilience means finding a way forward when things are hard, with support if needed. A can ask for a wider-fold model. “I have not made it stand yet. I can learn a wider fold.”

Check the fit
Use the feedback in C and Card 4. The note stays about the invented person. No one in the class has to give a talk or share a personal story.

You may switch to the map for B. Ask a trusted adult in private for help.

Card 4 Ways forward and private help

Useful way	What it can do
Use feedback	Give the next try a clear change to test.
Take a small step	Make one part easier to check.
Ask for support	Get a model or a clearer instruction.
Pause with a return plan	Allow time before a suitable next step.

People may need different support. A useful step may help without working at once. If a task feels unsafe or too much, stop and ask an adult for help.

Two review choices

Check your work against the success list. Or improve “Just keep going. You will get it right.” Give a specific step and a reason, without a promise.

Two exit choices

Explain resilience using one of the stories. Or correct “Asking for help means a person has failed.”

Words and model

support · feedback · change · next step · may

Start: “Resilience can include ... .” Model: “A can use feedback and change the fold.”

Help in private

Point to HELP, write a request or say “Can we talk in private?” Ask a trusted adult or use the school’s help route. If one adult is busy, ask another. You do not need to keep trying alone first. You may pass, pause and return with support.
