Staff answers and decision rules

BUILD Spring 1 Week 3 Tuesday 19 January 2027 P1 Year A Explore

Examples are adult models. They are never prefilled pupil evidence.

Arrival

A fresh trial and a reread card are valid. Do not invent a previous piece, quotation or pupil response.

Starter

Both method details are facts in the card. No, a shape alone does not tell us the artist's private mood. Reread and model one fact versus one personal reading if needed.

I do

Ask: 'Which came from learning about the artist: moving shapes to test a layout, or my exact new shape path?' Expected: the method of testing a layout. The exact path is the adult's own example.

We do

B is honest. If a pupil chooses A, point out the different maker, shapes and layout. Parallel check: 'Can I write my own name or code on my own response and name the artist as the idea link?' Expected: yes. Continue when the pupil can identify the method link and their own choice.

Create

Example only: I moved my own shapes, as the description said the artist could do. My layout rises because I chose hope. I kept the space at the end because it seems open to me. A different reason or art form is valid.

Review

A useful review is 'The artist moved shapes to test a layout. I moved my own shapes apart because I wanted calm.' It does not need to tell a personal life story.

Exit

Example only: The artist is Henri Matisse. He cut painted paper and moved shapes. His idea helped me test a layout. I chose a rising path because it suggests hope to me.

Teacher example

Teacher model only: Matisse moved cut shapes to test a layout. That helped me move my own shapes before fixing them. I chose a rising path because it suggests hope to me.

Teacher model only: I made a silent hand response with a wide gap at the end. The artist's method gave me the idea to test spacing. My sequence and intended feeling are my own.

Artist details and own response

BUILD Spring 1 Week 3 Tuesday 19 January 2027 P1 Year A Explore

Henri Matisse - He cut shapes from painted paper and moved the shapes to try a layout. In my own art, I could move shapes apart to suggest calm, or put them close to suggest energy. Those are my own readings. They do not tell us what he felt.

Own response

Keep one artist fact separate from a personal reading. Accept an original response with a method link and a reason. The class model is never pupil evidence. Read the card aloud and scribe exact confirmed words when needed.