A piece with my new texture

Weekly outcome: Try a new expressive technique.

I can use my new texture in a small piece.

Today I can

I can use the new way I tried.

I can keep or change one part for a reason.

I can show what I did in my arts log.

Words to use

texture — How a surface feels or looks.

rub — Move a tool back and forth.

light — With a small amount of force.

test — A small try before a piece.

One worked example

Teacher example only: the ridged marks suggest energy to me. Another maker may read them as calm.

Your idea may differ. Use your own words and choices.

Choose one task route

Supported

Find or remake two small tests.

Choose a texture and direct the adult.

Make a small piece or silent sequence.

Show one choice and your reason.

Independent

Use your chosen texture in a small piece.

Check one feature against your idea.

Keep or change it for a reason.

Keep your work and dated arts-log entry.

Aspire

Complete the same small piece.

Compare a first version with one small change.

Explain what the change does to the feeling.

Choose the version you want to keep.

Use one route at a time. You may change route with the adult.

Activity cards

Use these as prompts. Complete your response in your book, arts log or chosen art form.

1 0 to 15 seconds

Show yesterday tests and state the maker choice. Put a fresh small sheet over ridged card.

2 15 to 30 seconds

Rub one patch gently. Leave a gap before a second patch.

3 30 to 45 seconds

Make the second patch lighter. Point out the actual difference in marks.

4 45 to 60 seconds

Explain the decision. Show how the tests and piece stay together with a true log entry.

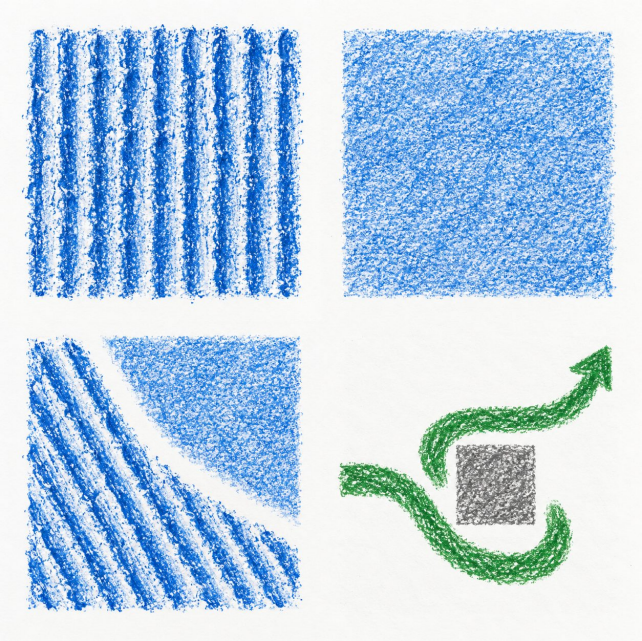

Your own making

Make your own choice. Keep or change one feature and give your reason.

Use or direct a short silent sequence: one texture, a still pose, a second texture, then stop. Choose the size or pace. Record the real sequence and the pupil meaning.

Two texture tests

Original class examples. These are not pupil work or evidence.

Ridged card

Paper rests on ridges. Gentle rubbing can reveal repeated lines.

The broken lines might suggest energy.

Smoother card

Paper rests on a flatter surface. The rubbing may be more even.

The softer patch might suggest calm.

Say what you notice. The maker can choose a different meaning.
