Staff answers and teaching notes

Outcome and boundaries

Talk about a worry with a trusted adult (Time to Talk). All classroom prompts and role play use the invented story. Reading a first-person opener is speaking as the fictional pupil, never a request to describe the learner's own worry. A pupil may speak, read, point/select through their usual communication aid, or ask the TA to voice their selected opener. Record the mode and all content prompts. An observer/pass alternative is valid; record practice not observed and plan a later supported opportunity. Never infer an actual disclosure or real-life help-seeking.

Trusted adult roles

Possible types are teacher, teaching assistant, parent or carer, and school support adult. A role does not guarantee trust. Teach the signs: listens, takes a worry seriously, helps safely. No pupil must endorse any particular adult or supply a personal name.

Three exact openers

Can I talk to you?

I have a worry. Can you help?

Can we talk in a quiet place?

Invented scene

A pupil is not sure where to put their class work. The pupil feels worried. They ask a teaching assistant for help.

Story pupil: Can I talk to you?

Teaching assistant: Yes. I can listen.

Story pupil: I am not sure where my work goes.

Teaching assistant: We can check the right place together.

Quiet and safe

Use a school-agreed quiet place with ordinary supervision. Quiet does not mean secret or isolated. Explain that staff may need to share a concern with people who help keep the pupil safe. Do not promise a fixed outcome or that one talk will remove a worry.

When the adult is busy

If the adult is busy, the story pupil can ask when to talk or try another trusted adult. If the worry is still there, keep asking for help.

Checks and observed practice

Model check

A suitable opener begins the talk. Accept any of the three exact openers or an appropriate equivalent through the pupil's usual mode. Keep real worries out of the model/check. Re-model privately when needed.

Main hinge

The adult is busy. What could the story pupil do? Correct B: Ask when to talk or try another trusted adult. Check privately by pointing, speaking or usual aid. If B and a safe reason/choice, proceed. If A, unclear or no response, re-model the busy-adult reply, offer two choices and use the parallel check; do not treat pass as misunderstanding.

Parallel hinge

The worry is still there after a talk. What could the story pupil do? Correct A: Ask a trusted adult again or try another trusted adult. Recheck by usual mode; do not treat a pass as a misconception.

Independence and access

Normal word bank, sentence starter, visible model, role card and usual aids stay on all routes. Independent means the learner selects a suitable adult role and initiates the fictional conversation using their usual mode after a general cue, without adult next-step content prompts. Do not remove access aids. TA voicing of a pupil's exact selected words is communication access, not independent spoken speech; record it precisely.

Three observation states

Observed initiation without adult next-step content prompts; Observed initiation with adult next-step content prompts; Practice not observed this time. Earlier supported rehearsal is teaching. Log actual later initiation and mode separately. A learner selecting words for TA voicing can demonstrate a choice through access, but this is not independent spoken speech.

Evidence and feedback

Use Evidence Sheet for anonymous/session learning notes: adult-role choice for the invented scene, selected opener, observed initiation/usual mode, next safe step, access and content prompts, one NS and learner response. No personal adult roles from the private card, names or worries. Observed with prompts, observed without next-step prompts and not observed are distinct. This is formative lesson practice, not proof of real-life disclosure or help-seeking. VF verbal feedback; WS worked with support; I independent; NS next step in green; // self-edit; ? read this back to me; E actual evidence banked; R responded. R only when Voice and Audience are present, one NS is set and the pupil responds in the same colour, on the same page or usual mode. Offer to the Communication portfolio; staff confirm mapping.

Misconceptions

Any adult must be trusted because of their role. A role is a possible starting point. A trusted adult listens, takes the worry seriously and helps safely. Support pupils to identify someone appropriate; no pupil has to endorse any adult.

A quiet talk means a secret, or one talk must fix the worry. Use a school-agreed quiet place with normal supervision. Staff may need to pass on concerns to help keep the pupil safe. If the worry remains, keep asking a trusted adult for help.

Scaffolds and private support

Choose and plan. Bank: adult, opener, work, help. Start: They will ask ... . They could say ... . Visible model: They will ask a teaching assistant. They could say: Can I talk to you?

Role play and private card. Bank: talk, work, role, help. Start: In the story, they could say ... . Visible model: In the story, they could say: I am not sure where my work goes.

Feedback and exit. Bank: next, busy, help, adult. Start: Their next step could be ... . Visible model: Their next step could be to ask another trusted adult.

Access

All three routes retain banks, starters, visible models and usual aids. Use short steps, two choices, processing time, explicit instruction and flexible grouping. Do not require speech or eye contact. Use planned sensory/physical access and quiet resets. Plan in any language. Offer observer/pass and supported return without asking why.

Private card and safeguarding

If a pupil cannot identify a trusted adult, support them privately and do not press them. Offer a familiar school role and help make contact through the school route; accept a blank card or pass. Any disclosure goes to the safeguarding lead through school procedure. Listen calmly, reassure, do not probe or promise secrecy. Follow urgent school procedures where needed. Do not write disclosure details in this pack, the private card, a book task or shared learning evidence. Do not read private cards aloud, collect or photograph them for assessment. Staff may support completion only with pupil agreement; the pupil keeps the card.
