Evidence bank for evaluation

Humanities | LAUNCH | Spring 1 Week 6 | HUM-LAUNCH-S1-W06

White paper version. Read quietly, point, write, type, speak privately or direct a scribe. You may pass. No public answer or reading aloud is required.

E1–E6 are new factual teaching summaries based on accepted earlier lessons. No old text, image or person's account is copied. No survivor testimony is reproduced, paraphrased, invented or composited. These cards are an evidence bank, not primary-source extracts.

E1 Background causes and Nazi choices

28 June 1919; 1933 and after

The Treaty of Versailles was signed on 28 June 1919. Many people in Germany resented its terms. Nazi leaders used this anger to seek support. From 1933, they built a dictatorship and sought more territory. The treaty was one background factor. Nazi aims and decisions drove aggression; war was not automatic.

Earlier learning: Week 1 S1/S2.

Weigh different factors. A background problem did not remove the responsibility of those who chose aggression.

Think: Which fact describes a background cause, and which describes a later choice?

E2 Failed concessions and the trigger

September 1938 to September 1939

Britain and France made concessions at Munich in September 1938, hoping to avoid war. German forces occupied more Czech lands in March 1939. Nazi Germany invaded Poland on 1 September 1939. Britain and France declared war on 3 September after Germany did not withdraw. The invasion was the immediate trigger for wider war in Europe.

Earlier learning: Week 1 S3/S4.

Concessions failed to stop expansion. That did not remove Nazi leaders' responsibility for invasion. Earlier causes and the trigger played different parts.

Think: How did the invasion differ from the longer background causes?

E3 Rights removed through work rules

7 April 1933 | Germany

A Nazi law began removing Jewish people from state jobs in Germany. Some early exceptions existed. Losing work could remove income. People wrote and enforced these unjust rules. The people targeted were not to blame.

Earlier learning: Week 2 S2.

Keep the date, place and initial exceptions. This did not remove every job from every Jewish person on one day.

Think: What right and part of daily life were affected?

E4 Further loss of rights in stages

15 September 1935 and later rules; November 1938 | Germany

The Nuremberg Laws were passed on 15 September 1935. These laws and later rules took away German Jews' citizenship rights. The rules used false racist ideas. In November 1938, Jewish pupils were barred from public schools in Germany. Work, political rights and education were restricted through different steps.

Earlier learning: Week 2 S3/S4.

These examples concern Germany. Rules and dates differed elsewhere. Choices and enforcement caused harm; the sequence was not inevitable.

Think: How do the dates show rights being removed over time?

E5 Consequences for lives and communities

Nazi rule, 1933–1945

Before Nazi rule, Jewish people had varied lives. They had families, jobs, interests and communities. Loss of rights harmed work, school and social ties. The Holocaust was the Nazi-led persecution and murder of six million European Jews. Nazi allies and those who helped them took part. Other groups faced Nazi persecution and murder. Their experiences differed.

Earlier learning: Week 2 context/definition and S2–S4; Week 4 R1.

Remember full lives and loss. Do not treat the war, rights laws and the Holocaust as one event. A sequence does not prove that later events had to happen.

Think: How can you explain harm with care for people’s dignity?

E6 Remembrance and responsibility today

27 January each year | UK

The UK marks Holocaust Memorial Day on 27 January each year. It remembers those murdered in the Holocaust, Nazi persecution and later genocides. It gives time to learn and think. Remembering can honour people and help us study choices and hate. We can learn facts with care and check claims. We can seek safe adult help if we meet abuse.

Earlier learning: Week 4 R1–R3/R5/R6; Week 5 F6.

A day or ceremony cannot stop hate alone. Society shares responsibility. A pupil need not make a pledge or face someone who is unsafe.

Think: Why do we remember? What can one day not do?
