Care for the world

Reflect on care for the world as a belief.

Resilience & Change

Care and reasons

A made up growing club has a dripping tap.

What could be a caring next step?

Use the invented club. A quiet pause is available.

Christianity and stewardship

Many Christians believe the world is God's creation.

Stewardship means caring responsibly for it.

A belief can guide a choice, such as using less.

Humanism and responsibility

Humanism is a non religious worldview.

Many humanists use reason, evidence and care.

They may protect nature because life depends on it.

A shared action

The club can remind people to close taps.

A reminder cannot mend a broken tap.

They should tell an adult and check the result.

Report a fault to an adult. Do not try to repair it.

Beliefs reasons and actions

Example	Belief or view	Reason	Action
Christianity	God's creation	Care for it	Report the tap
Humanism	Reason and care	Reduce harm	Report the tap
Comparison	Different views	Care can overlap	Check the result

An action alone cannot tell us someone's belief.

Our talk

One reason in ____ is ____.

This could lead to the action ____.

Both may care for the world by ____.

You can learn without stating your own beliefs.

Your response

Supported: match a reason and reflect on a limit.

Independent: link a worldview, action and effect.

Aspire: compare reasons and judge the reminder.

Use your book, speech, pointing or a scribe.

Review and exit

Name a reason someone may care for the world.

How might this reason guide one action?

People can share an action for different reasons.
