A belief visitor

Respond thoughtfully to a faith or belief visitor.

Resilience & Change

A question with respect

A visitor can speak about their own experience.

One person cannot speak for every member of a tradition.

Use the invented Sikh account if there is no visitor.

Sikhism and service

Our printed account is invented for learning.

It describes Sikh seva, or selfless service.

It links langar with care and equal welcome.

A thoughtful question

The printed answer links langar with a welcome for all.

How could volunteers help someone who needs a chair?

A real visitor can choose whether to answer.

Listening and response

Listen, point to a note or ask for a repeat.

Use a detail from the answer in your response.

Thank the visitor for what they have shared.

Eye contact and stillness are not success rules.

Questions and responses

Purpose	Question	Listen for	Response
Understand	What is seva?	A meaning	Restate it
Explore	How is care shown?	An example	Link an idea
Thank	What did I learn?	A new detail	Offer thanks

Ask about a practice. Avoid pressure to share private details.

Our talk

I heard that ____.

This helps me understand ____ because ____.

Thank you for explaining ____.

You can pass or use the printed account.

Your response

Supported: choose a question and one detail.

Independent: link a detail and add practice thanks.

Aspire: justify a follow-up and explain the limits.

The printed account is invented. No real visit is claimed.

Review and exit

What detail did you learn? Add a practice thank-you.

Why does one account not speak for everyone?

No note is sent. Use your book, speech or a scribe.
