Invented terms card

Term	Classroom example
Employer	An unnamed invented employer that prepares paper packs.
Role	Paper-pack preparer. Arrange materials and check each pack against the order.
Hours	Monday to Thursday, 9 am to 4 pm. Break arrangements are in the full terms, which are not shown here.
Pay	Invented gross pay of £2,000 each calendar month, before any deductions.
Instructions and safety	Follow safe agreed instructions. Pause and ask the supervisor if materials, instructions or safety are unclear.
Problems	Tell the supervisor the facts. If the concern is about the supervisor, or remains unresolved, ask another appropriate person for help.
Other terms	Holiday, notice, leave and other terms are not shown in this short extract. Ask for the complete information.

Fictional adult employment example only. The figures are invented and do not demonstrate legal pay rates. This is not a complete contract or written statement. Some terms and rights come from law. A clause cannot simply remove legal rights. No learner signs or accepts employment.

Worked example

Invented example: a worker is told to prepare two paper packs. Each pack needs one large card and one paper strip. There are two large cards but only one strip. The order cannot yet be completed as written.

Pause: do not say both packs are complete. Check: read the order and count the materials once. Ask: 'The order needs two strips. I have one. Where should I get the other strip?' Report: tell the supervisor what has been checked and what remains missing.

The safe temporary solution is to keep the incomplete pack separate and ask for the missing material or a clarified instruction. This avoids passing an incomplete pack to the next person. Do not take stock without permission or hide the gap.

Try a decision

A Missing materials

The order requires two paper packs, each with one large card and one paper strip. The worker has two cards and one strip. The checker asks whether both packs are ready.

B Conflicting instructions

The printed order says one strip in each pack. A new spoken instruction says two strips in each pack. The worker is unsure which instruction is current.

C Pressure to hide a gap

A partner says, 'Send the unchecked pack now and say it was checked.' The order requires every pack to be checked. The supervisor is nearby.

D Unfair clause

A fictional extra clause says, 'This paper means no legal rights apply to this worker.' A learner is asked whether the sentence should be accepted as a statement of the law.

Aspire response

Your task

1. Compare two possible responses to scenario C. Give a benefit and a risk of each before choosing the safer response.

2. Explain why a contract can include terms beyond this extract, including some spoken or legal terms.

3. Draft a short factual report with the order, what was checked, what remains uncertain and what help is requested. Keep blame and invented facts out.

4. Add a follow-up check: how would the worker know the chosen solution has dealt with the problem? Additional length is optional.

Keep your own thinking

1. In your book or usual response mode, record one term about the role, one about hours and one about pay. Point to the relevant clause for each.

2. Write or say one question about information missing from the extract. Explain why getting the answer would help the worker.

3. Choose scenario A or B. State the problem using only the facts. Give a safe action for pause, check, ask and report, and explain why your solution is useful.

4. Complete: 'A contract cannot simply remove legal rights because ...' Use the explanation or ask for a readback if needed.

5. Review your own evidence. Keep a missing step visible and add one next step after feedback. Do not copy the worked example as an action you actually took.

Evidence to keep

My contract term and the clause that supports it are ...

Information still missing is ... My question is ...

The problem is ... I checked ... I would ask ... I would report ...

My safe solution is ... because ... I would check it worked by ...

My own evidence reference is ... The help I used was ... A next step is ...

Review

Name or point to one contract term and one question to ask about missing information.

Give the safe next action for one workplace problem and a reason.

Choose one piece of your own work to keep. Say what it shows and one point still to practise.

My next step could be: Add the exact instruction or count that supports your chosen solution, then explain how you will know the problem is resolved.

Use the Evidence Sheet if typing or exact scribing. Keep your own words; a partner may help read the source.

Use voice, writing, pointing, a usual aid, typing or an exact scribe. Read back and correct. Plan in any language. Ask a trusted adult privately; pass, pause and return with support. No personal work or family story is needed.
