Suggested answers concern invented examples. They are not learner observations or automatic judgements. Accept any safe, accurate explanation supported by the source.

Model and scenario keys

The evidence task has no prefilled learner answer. Accept any precise claim supported by an actual work reference, with the support used and a limit stated. Spoken, pointed and exact-scribed responses are valid when the learner checks the meaning. Do not infer independence from neatness, confidence, attendance or a partner's answer.

A reference and evidence are related but different. Evidence may be actual work, a dated observation record or a task response. A reference is a statement from a person who knows relevant work or suitability. A possible referee should have a basis to comment and must agree before details or a statement are used. A copied classroom model is neither a real reference nor a learner's own evidence.

For the missing-item scenario, record 'not available today' and a specific follow-up, such as checking the agreed folder with an adult or completing a fresh task with its real date. Never backdate work or relabel a model or partner response as a past event. A newly completed task may be new evidence if its actual date and support are recorded.

For the final scenario, accept stop or do not begin the unfamiliar machine task, describe the lack of training, ask the supervisor for training or a safe alternative, and use the agreed trusted-adult route if the concern is ignored. Do not require confrontation, a legal label or a personal employment disclosure. This is a written or spoken classroom case; no machine is present or used.

The invented payslip net is £850: £1000 minus £100 equals £900, then minus £50 equals £850. The printed £900 omits the NI deduction. A calm query could be: 'The lines give £850. The printed net says £900. Please could this be checked?' These invented amounts test arithmetic only. They do not establish real tax or NI rates, lawful deductions or a worker's entitlement.

A sensible record could include the task instruction, the invented payslip, the date and neutral wording of a concern, or an actual work reference. Do not record real employer, person or contact information in shared classroom work. Keep any personal concern private and use the established help route.

The closing Evidence Sheet has six exact source outcomes in a teacher-only grid. All tick, work-reference and comment cells begin blank. Review each against actual evidence, record support and any gap or follow-up, and leave a tick blank when the evidence is insufficient. An unticked outcome is not proof of failure. Keep this staff review separate from the learner's reflection and self-assessment. Do not claim completion of the unit award from these classroom records alone.

Use one next step with a real audience. Retain the first response and the learner's reply in the same colour, on the same page or usual mode. Mark R only after Voice and Audience are present, an NS has been set and the learner has responded. Offer the relevant work to the Communication portfolio; staff confirm any mapping.

A claim and its evidence

One dated classroom sheet records that a learner checked one paper pack after a prompt. The learner wants to write 'I always check every order without help.'

Suggested answer: Narrow the claim to one checked pack and record the prompt. The available evidence supports one observed check with support. It does not show every order or work without help.

A possible referee

An adult observed a classroom task. No permission to use the adult's details or a statement has yet been sought.

Suggested answer: Identify the adult by role only and plan to ask permission through the agreed adult route. Observation can make the adult a possible referee. A learner still needs agreement before using details or a statement; planning is not a completed reference.

An unavailable item

A learner cannot find the earlier payslip response. A partner offers a completed response to copy and label as the missing work.

Suggested answer: Record the missing item and agree a follow-up. Do not copy another person's response as past evidence. A gap is useful information. A copied answer would not show what this learner actually did.

Final rights at work scenario

An invented workroom task says 'check paper packs'. The worker is asked to use an unfamiliar machine without training. An invented payslip shows gross £1000, tax £100, NI £50 and printed net £900.

Suggested answer: Stop the machine task and ask the supervisor for training or a safe alternative. The correct net is £850, so calmly ask for the mismatch to be checked. Keep the task information and the payslip or a neutral record of the query. The lack of training is a safety clue. £1000 minus £100 minus £50 equals £850; that arithmetic identifies a mismatch but cannot establish whether real tax or NI amounts are correct. If the concern continues, use the agreed route to another trusted adult.

Checks evidence and misconceptions

Check after I do

Does one sheet showing one prompted check prove that a learner always works without help?

No. It shows one check with a prompt. Keep the claim as small as the evidence and record the support.

Main hinge

Which entry is ready to keep as an honest evidence record?

A: I always work perfectly. I copied the model reference.

B: My task sheet shows one check after a prompt. The second pack was not observed.

C: I cannot find the work, so I will tick every outcome.

Key: B. Each learner answers privately. If either chooses A or C, model one claim against one actual clue, name the support and gap, then use the parallel hinge. If B is chosen and explained, move to the individual task. A correct letter without an evidence explanation needs a short follow-up.

Parallel hinge

A person has seen your task but has not agreed to be your referee. What can you record now?

A: A possible referee role and a plan to ask permission.

B: A completed reference written by me in that person's name.

C: Their contact details shared with everyone.

Key: A. If A is chosen with the permission explanation, continue with support as needed. Otherwise use the two-choice referee card and adult readback. Keep the reference status as 'permission not yet sought'; do not manufacture agreement.

Misconceptions

Mistaken idea	Correction
A model reference can be copied and used as a real reference.	A model teaches the format. A real referee must know relevant work and agree before their details or statement are used.
Every outcome must be ticked for the folder to look finished.	Ticks come from actual evidence. Keep missing or insufficient evidence visible and agree a follow-up.

Judgement and feedback

Review the learner’s own reasoning, source use and safe action. Do not infer competence from attendance, confidence, reading fluency or a partner’s answer. Classroom evidence cannot prove real employment, pay entitlement or a completed placement. VF verbal feedback · WS worked with support · I independent · NS next step · // self-edit · ? read this back to me · E saved evidence · R responded. Keep the first try, one NS and the learner reply. Record R only after Voice and Audience are clear and the learner responds to NS in the same colour, on the same page or usual mode. Offer to the Communication portfolio. Staff confirm any mapping to the unit award; no award completion is implied.

Use voice, writing, pointing, a usual aid, typing or an exact scribe. Read back and correct. Plan in any language. Ask a trusted adult privately; pass, pause and return with support. No personal work or family story is needed.
