Invented model and key ideas

All stories are made up. Use the characters only. No personal stories, family details, accounts, appearance ratings or real incidents are needed. Pair talk is optional. No acted conflict or pupil casualty practice.

An invented advert

A plain text advert says: 'Buy this craft kit. Look perfect. Feel sure every day.' A note says: 'This advert sells a craft kit. It gives no evidence for its promise.' An invented learner sees the advert and begins to feel less sure about joining a club.

Worked reason

The message links buying a kit and looking a certain way with feeling sure. It gives no proof. A kit cannot promise how someone will feel each day. The learner's worth does not depend on looks or buying it. A fair rewrite is: 'This kit has craft materials. People can enjoy making things in different ways.' The learner could pause the advert and talk to a trusted adult.

Ideas to keep in view

• Body image concerns thoughts and feelings about the body. People deserve respect whatever they look like. The class does not rate or compare bodies.

• An advert may try to sell an item by promising feelings or approval. Separate the item description from a promise and ask what evidence supports it.

• A post may show a selected view. In the supplied story, the source note shows omitted practice and help. One post cannot show a whole life; this does not make every post false.

• A body neutral rewrite describes the item or activity without judging looks. If a message causes worry or hurt, the invented learner can stop engaging and ask a trusted adult or the safeguarding lead for help.

Use words, pointing, drawing, typing or the usual communication aid. An adult may scribe the learner's exact words and read them back. Plan in any language. Record access aids separately from prompts that supplied content.

Invented cases for the pair

A promise in a made up advert

An invented advert says: 'Buy this photo light. Everyone will like you.' The small print says: 'The light has two brightness settings.' The advert gives no evidence that buying it changes friendships.

• Which line describes the item, and which line makes a promise about being liked?

• What evidence is missing from the friendship promise?

• Write a fair line that describes the item without judging a person's looks or worth.

A selected post

A made up post says: 'Ready first time. Every day is easy.' A source note for this classroom story says: 'The creator chose one picture from many tries. They left out the practice and the times they asked for help.' No real picture or account is used.

• What does the source note show was left out?

• Why can this one post not show the creator's full day or feelings?

• Rewrite the caption so it allows practice, help and different experiences.

Reader A spots a clue. Checker B explains a reason. Swap for the next case. Use books or usual aids for each learner's own answer. Working alone is valid.

Safe choices and private check

A kind response to a hurtful reply

A learner shares a made up notice about a drama club. One invented reply judges who should join by their looks. Another reply says: 'People can join, learn and ask for help in different ways.' The learner stops reading the hurtful replies and asks a trusted adult what to do.

• Which reply respects people without judging bodies?

• What can the learner do without arguing with or passing on the hurtful reply?

• Who could help if the first adult is not available?

Private hinge

An invented advert says buying an item will make everyone like a learner. What is the safest conclusion?

A. The learner must buy it to be worth liking.

B. The advert makes a promise without proof. The learner's worth does not depend on buying it.

C. Every advert and every post must be false.

Give one reason privately. An adult can read the choices. Use words, pointing or the usual aid.

A safe help route

A character can tell a trusted adult or the safeguarding lead privately. If the first adult is away or does not help, try another trusted adult. If there is danger now, get urgent help. No one needs to prove a worry before asking for help.

Visible model

Pause card

I would like to use my agreed pause.

Use the agreed pause signal. No public reason is needed. An adult supports the agreed supervised route, a neutral task and a supported return. A learner may pass, observe or catch up privately. Keep supervision in place.

Private help opener

A character could say: Can I talk privately? I need help with a safety worry.

A character can tell a trusted adult or the safeguarding lead privately. If the first adult is away or does not help, try another trusted adult. If there is danger now, get urgent help. No one needs to prove a worry before asking for help.

Learning review

In your book, choose Ready to explain, With a prompt or Need another example for each learning point. All choices start blank. This is a learning check, not a judgement about health, family life or safety. Pass is valid.

Keep the first try. Use one next step and respond in the usual mode. No personal detail is needed.
