Two ways to show pressure knowledge

Understand peer pressure and assertiveness.

Use only the invented cases A, B and C on Support Cards. No real pressure, account or private card is needed. Keep your usual aids. You can pass or ask for the agreed pause.

Choice B Pressure map

Make a map or list for all three cases in your book. For each, show the type, clue, a fitting phrase and a safe next step.

Choice C Short advice

Write short advice for all three cases in your book. Include the same type, clue, fitting phrase and safe next step. It needs no extra length.

Shared success checks

For all three invented cases, show the pressure type, a clue, a fitting phrase and a safe next step. Types can overlap. Both main formats have the same checks. All three phrase trials are offered in the learner usual mode.

Main task choices

Words: type · clue · phrase · next step

Start: For case… I suggest…

Model: For case C, stop replying and ask staff for help.

Visible model from A

In A, repeated requests are a direct pressure clue. A clear phrase is: No, I am choosing my own task. The learner may ask trusted school staff for help. Help is valid before a refusal too.

Three phrase opportunities

All three phrases on Support Cards page 2 are offered. You may say them aloud, use an aid, type, point, hear a model, observe or pass. Staff give a calm cue. No pupil plays a person applying pressure.

All boxes start blank. This checks story learning, not confidence or real life safety. Keep your first try, one next step and your reply. The private exit-line card stays with you.

Type instead

Choose map B or advice C. Use all three cases and the same checks. Use a work code, not a name. No personal details or private card here.

Use the normal saving routine, lesson code and work code. Show the adult privately. A book, aid or exact scribe is also valid. A scribe reads back quietly so you can correct it. Three spoken trials are offered; other modes and pass are valid.

Staff evidence record

Use a work code. Record fictional learning only. Do not inspect or copy the private exit-line card. Keep real concerns in the separate safeguarding record.

For each phrase record spoken, aided, typed, pointed, model heard, observed, passed or not observed. Do not turn observing into proof of speech. A pass is unobserved and not failure. Keep actual work. R follows Voice, Audience, one NS and the actual reply. Offer to the Communication portfolio; staff confirm mapping.
