A Big questions

What makes something special? Why do people celebrate? What helps people feel hope? Big questions have more than one good answer.

Source: Authored classroom resource

Limit: These are three examples. There are many more big questions.

B A weak answer

“Things are special just because.” This gives a view but no reason.

Source: Authored classroom example

Limit: A weak answer can be improved. It is a starting point.

C A stronger answer

“I think an object is special when it reminds you of a person, because the memory matters more than the price.”

Source: Authored classroom example

Limit: A different view with a clear reason is just as strong.

D Different views

A person of faith might say light is special because it reminds them of God. A Humanist might say light is special because it brings people together. Both give a reason.

Source: Authored classroom resource

Limit: These are two examples. People within one worldview also differ.

Shared investigation

1. Decide whether each answer gives a reason.
2. Improve the weak answer together by adding “because”.

Work with a partner or adult, or use your own table. One person suggests; the other checks the evidence. Swap after one turn. Passing is allowed.
