Staff answers and decision rules

BUILD Spring 1 Week 5 Tuesday 2 February 2027 P1 Year A Explore

Examples are adult models. They are never prefilled pupil evidence.

Arrival

A fresh small piece and one real revision today are valid. The record must distinguish that from work recovered from an earlier week.

Starter

Adding a pause is an action. Before and after can be two pieces, a sketch and actual changed piece, two work-only images or two precisely witnessed same-form sequences. A device is optional.

I do

Ask: 'Did I only write my wish, or did I make the changed sequence?' Expected: made the changed sequence. If unclear, show the before and after pause lengths again and name the observed difference.

We do

B shows a change was made. If A is chosen, contrast the planned action with the performed one. Parallel check: 'If I wrote wider gap but the gap stayed the same, have I made that change?' Expected: no. Continue when the pupil can identify one real revised feature.

Create

Example only: I kept my first silent sequence. I made the pause longer in the revised one. I can show the difference, and the longer pause helps my calm idea. A physical fold-print revision keeps both actual prints. A changed medium is labelled as fresh work before revising it.

Review

A useful review says what changed and why it may help the intended idea. It can honestly note that further practice is needed. The work, not a general adult judgement, supports the statement.

Exit

Example only: Before, my sequence ended straight after the curve. I added a long pause. I chose it to help calm. After, I noticed the ending felt clearer to me. Next I will practise the same pause again.

Teacher example

Teacher model only: I kept the original silent sequence. I made its final pause longer. I chose that action to help calm. The after version has a pause I can notice more clearly.

Teacher model only: I kept my dry first fold print. I made a revised print on fresh paper with wider spacing. I kept both real prints and described the actual difference. I did not paint over or hide the first version.