

Knowledge Organiser (GROW W2): How beliefs shape who we are

Humanities Aut 1 · 2026–27 · Workbook outcome: Describe how beliefs can shape a person's identity.

Key Word	Definition
Modelled:	Modelled: the nurse. Belief: fasting in Ramadan brings a person closer to the divine and to people who go hungry. Choice: no food or drink from dawn to sunset for a month. Habit: every year, the same month, the same fast. Who I am: the nurse is known at work as the one who plans the year around Ramadan and brings food in to share when it ends. Four links, one order.
Said together:	Said together: a belief is one part of who a person is. It shapes choices, the choices become habits, and the habits are how other people come to know that person. The same belief can be lived in more than one way.

Key Facts

- Identity is who you are. It is made of many parts: family, friends, hobbies, home town, and what you believe.
- A belief can shape a choice. A choice made again and again becomes a habit. A habit becomes part of who you are.

Arrival Task

What is identity?

1) Identity is who you are. It is made of many parts: family, friends, hobbies, home town, and what you believe.

2) A belief can shape a choice. A choice made again and again becomes a habit. A habit becomes part of who you are.

One belief, one week

Picture a shopkeeper in a Teesside town. The card says the shopkeeper believes that every person is equal in the eyes of the divine. In one week: the shopkeeper wears a turban. The shopkeeper keeps a free kitchen at the place of worship, open to anyone. Every customer is served the same way. The question: which of those things comes from the belief, and which order do they go in?

Try it: cover the card. Say the belief from memory, then say one choice that comes from it. Then uncover the card and check the order.

We Do 1: Put the strips in order

Strip A: decides to stop eating meat, and keeps to it every day of the year.

Strip B: is known by friends as the one who brings the best vegetable dishes to every party.

Strip C: believes that all living things deserve care and should not be harmed.

We Do 2: Build the ranking together

We rank one card as a class. Everyone writes a rank of three on a whiteboard first and we hold up together, so the first rank heard does not become the only rank. The card is the bus driver who goes to church every Sunday and gives to the food bank. The three parts to rank are days, food, and how the person treats others. Belief first on the chain; then the rank.

Check yourself

- Check yourself: does every chain start with the belief and end with who they are?
- Check yourself: does every link point at something you can read on the card?
- Check yourself: is your rank about parts of daily life, not about which belief is best?

How beliefs shape who we are

SoW: 'GROW Weekly - Autumn'!C61 — "Describe how beliefs can shape a person's identity."

Learning objective: I can describe how a belief shapes who a person is. I can put the chain in order: belief, choice, habit, who they are.

Nobody is asked what they believe. Every task can be done from the profile cards you are given. No card is about anyone in the room.

Belief chain record

Belief → choice → habit → who they are. The rank is of parts of daily life, never of beliefs.

The first row is done for you, from the card we sequenced together. It is in italics so you know it is not yours.

Independent Work – Standard

Two cards in order, and a rank of what the belief shapes most.

Card	Belief	Choice, then habit	Who they are
the one who stopped eating meat	all living things deserve care	stops eating meat · then every day, all year	known by friends for the best vegetable dishes

Choose a route

- 1. I chose my own route.
- 2. My chain and rank are in my own words.
- 3. Any adult help is written on the record.

Exit Ticket – Standard

1) Read one chain to a partner. The listener says back which link came second.

2) Did the listener name a different link, or none? Move one strip or change one word so the order is clear. That change is your influence.

3) Next lesson you will use this chain again on a new set of cards. The order you learned today is where that starts.
