Staff answers & diagnostic guide — One artist, three facts

Pathway: BASE · Week 3 Part 1 · Big question: What three facts can we spot when we look closely at an artwork?

Starter answer & explanation

Question: Why do we slide a small card window over a big busy picture?

Correct: To help our eyes focus on one small mark set at a time — Yes. A card window stops you feeling overwhelmed by the whole page.

Guided team check (We do) answers

Q1: Which of these is a clear visual fact about an artwork? -> The artist used thick black outlines and yellow dots (Yes. Anyone can look at the print and see those marks.)

Q2: When you draw your close-up study, do you need to copy the whole big picture? -> No, only draw the small mark set inside your card window (Yes. Drawing one small section neatly teaches you the mark.)

Q3: What happens when a maker puts bright yellow right next to dark blue? -> Both colours pop out strongly. It works as one is light and one is dark (Yes. Light against dark makes high dark and light.)

Question: What does a card card window help you do?

Correct: Look closely on one small part of an artwork — Yes. It frames one small square so you can see the marks clearly.
