Supported

In your book: record four brief responses in your chosen mode, unless passing.

1. Last lesson — Hope

Did hope guarantee the garden plan would succeed?

Clue: Think about what was and was not known.

2. Last lesson — Support

What practical support did the garden need?

Clue: Think about the damaged area.

3. Last lesson — Belief and limits

Did a setback show a person had weak belief?

Clue: Think about the limits of that claim.

4. Link to today — Link to today

What helps test a viewpoint?

Clue: Think about a claim and information.

Fresh source: Authored fresh case X5: a workshop sends the same spoken instructions to all participants. One participant cannot access spoken information and requests written instructions containing the same steps. The organiser can provide them. A draft argument says: “Any different format is unfair special treatment.”

1. Check 1

Which case fact challenges the draft argument?

2. Check 2

Give a more justified judgement about this case.

Starter and method strip

Starter

Two argument labels: “I dislike that view” and “This fact challenges the view because…”

Question: Which label begins a reasoned counterargument?

In your book: record one brief choice or reason, unless passing.

Method

Attend to one model. Locate its claim, evidence and explanation.

Separate authored example: a tool library offers the same opening hours to everyone. That shared rule is predictable, which is a strength. But a claim that equal hours guarantee equal access is too strong if the entrance cannot be used by some visitors. A justified judgement keeps predictable rules while examining access barriers. This model does not answer the reading-guide case.

In your book: keep one useful model link or vocabulary note, marked “model”; no copying is required.

Feedback codes

Q1 · Authored viewpoint; not testimony

“Fairness means giving every person exactly the same support.” The writer argues that a shared rule avoids favouritism and makes decisions predictable. This is a position to evaluate, not the lesson’s required conclusion.

Q2 · Authored community case

A community reading session uses a short printed guide. One visitor cannot read the small print and asks for a larger-print version. Another asks for the whole guide to be read aloud. Both adjustments keep the same information and do not remove anyone else’s guide. The organiser can prepare the larger print and arrange a reader. No pupil access need is requested or assumed.

Q3 · Source perspectives

The Christian caring account describes helping across a community boundary; some believers apply it to attending to another person’s need. This humanist account uses evidence, empathy and discussion to consider consequences. Both may support removing an access barrier, though members can disagree about means or priorities. These are source-based classroom applications, not quotations from believers.

Q4 · Evaluation criteria

Represent the viewpoint accurately. Give a relevant strength. Test it with case evidence and a counterargument. Explain a reply or limit. End with a judgement that states when the claim may or may not hold. Evaluate the argument, not the worth of the people who hold it.

2. Record an improved point-evidence-explain sentence about the tool library.
3. Add the strongest fair reason for shared opening hours before qualifying the judgement.

Q5 · Separate authored weak-response practice

A tool library offers the same opening hours to everyone, but some visitors cannot use its entrance. Weak draft: "The opening-hours rule is bad. Everyone knows it. Changing the entrance is nice." This is a separate practice case, not the reading-guide answer.

Recall after first try

Keep covered until after the first try.

Last lesson linked source beliefs to possible hope or resilience while recognising practical needs. A checked smaller garden plan, support and permission to pause mattered. Belief could support meaning or motivation without guaranteeing success; a setback did not prove weak belief.
