Weekly plan notes

Assessment and cases

Formative. Four generic invented cases: small bakery, public-sector hospital ward, large warehouse planning role and self-employed repair work. Types, status and patterns can overlap; these examples are not universal rules. At least three ways must be compared.

Preference and evidence

Link a feature to what the learner values, explain why and retain a trade-off or question. Private responses are available. A practice preference can support comparison, but staff record hypothetical reasoning and do not infer personal fit.

Where this leads

This helps me compare work with what matters to me and ask useful questions before choosing a next step.

Planned support

Chunked cards, separate model, shared headings, vocabulary and private rehearsal. Use normal aids, extra processing and a regulation break. Plan in any language. No personal income, health or family-work disclosure required.

Evidence and response

Retain actual work, source labels, preference type, support and any change. Offer to the Communication portfolio. E only for banked evidence. One NS; R after Voice, Audience and learner response in the same colour, on the same page or usual mode.
