1. Prior knowledge — Decision

What is a decision?

Clue: Think about choosing an action.

2. Prior knowledge — Evidence

What could help check a claim?

Clue: Think about information you can examine.

3. Prior knowledge — Affected people

Why might two people need different support?

Clue: Think about what each person is trying to do.

4. Link to today — Link to today

What would help explain a fair choice?

Clue: Think about a reason and who is affected.

Starter and method strip

Starter

Authored practice choice: a shelf organiser says, “I put the heavy box low because someone could be hurt if it fell.”

Question: Which part of the statement gives an ethical reason?

In your book: record one brief choice or reason, unless passing.

Method

Attend to one model. Locate its claim, evidence and explanation.

In the shelf example, the point is to put the heavy box low. The evidence is that a falling heavy box could hurt someone. The explanation links the action to reducing harm. A safety principle and a likely consequence support the decision. This is an authored model, not a religious teaching or proof that every low shelf is safe.

In your book: keep one useful model link or vocabulary note, marked “model”; no copying is required.

Feedback codes

VF = verbal feedback; WS = worked with support; I = independent; NS = one specific next step; E = evidence on the evidence app; R = responded: the loop is closed; // = self-edit point; ? = read this back to me.

E1 · Adapted Christian story account

In a Christian parable, a traveller needs help. Two people pass by. A helper from another community stops, arranges care and pays for continued support. The story identifies the person who acted with mercy as a neighbour. Some believers read this as a reason to care beyond their own group. This is a source-based retelling, not a pupil role-play.

E2 · Humanist ethical account

This humanist account uses reason, empathy and discussion to consider what to do. It weighs consequences and listens to those affected. A judgement may change when new information arrives. This is a non-religious approach; humanists do not all make the same decision, and not every non-religious person is a humanist.

E3 · Authored community case; not testimony

A community centre has one quiet room. A reading group booked it. A new visitor needs a quiet place to complete a short form; the busy main room is not suitable for that task. The group can use the main room, but moving would disrupt its activity. Nobody has yet asked either party about timing. The organiser must decide how to use the room.

E4 · Options and information

Option A: keep the booking unchanged and offer the visitor a later quiet slot. Option B: ask the group about a short agreed move, then restore its booking. Option C: ask both parties whether the room can be shared in time. These are possible decisions, not guaranteed solutions. A fair process hears both needs before assuming consent.

2. Compare two options using one principle and one likely consequence.

Recall after first try

Keep covered until after the first try.

This is a prerequisite baseline, not a claim that an unseen previous lesson was taught. A decision is a choice; a reason explains why. Evidence is information that can support a claim. People affected may have different needs.
