Learning outcome: Evaluate the significance of a person who created change.

Enquiry: How significant was Rosa Parks, and why?

Rosa Parks lived from 1913 to 2005. She worked for civil rights before and after the Montgomery bus boycott. Her arrest on 1 December 1955 helped prompt the protest. Many people kept it going. A separate court case helped change bus law. Her part must be judged within that shared work.

You may point, write, type, speak privately or direct a scribe. Reading aloud and public answers are optional. You may pass.

Today I can

I can use four tests to judge why Rosa Parks mattered.

I can score each test and give a fact, a reason and a limit.

I can write my own view and explain it with evidence.

Our shared check

Evidence Finder selects a fact. Reason Checker asks why it fits a test and what it cannot show. Swap and rotate. Try C1 with B, C and D.

Your own work

In your book, complete your own four-row grid. Give each criterion a score from 0 to 3, a card code, a reason and a limit. Add the scores out of 12. Write a short paragraph with your overall view, two facts with codes, your strongest criterion, a link to now and one limit. Explain why the evidence supports your view.

Choose one route. The six evidence cards, grid and paragraph support follow. Use Significance_Criteria beside them. Print only the pages needed.

Use the quiet signal to ask the adult for a pause. Use the agreed supervised place. No public reason is needed. Return with one small card check or a private recap when ready.

Route Supported

Learning outcome: Evaluate the significance of a person who created change.

1 Use all six cards with exact adult reading if helpful. Use one test at a time. Point to a fact, then say why it fits.

2 Copy the four-row grid into your book or use ready-cut labels. Use the scale, card codes and reason stems. Keep your own score, reason and limit for each row.

3 Add your scores. Use the paragraph frame or direct a scribe. Keep two facts, your strongest test, an overall view and one limit.

Your own finish

In your book, complete your own four-row grid. Give each criterion a score from 0 to 3, a card code, a reason and a limit. Add the scores out of 12. Write a short paragraph with your overall view, two facts with codes, your strongest criterion, a link to now and one limit. Explain why the evidence supports your view.

Paragraph frame

I judge Rosa Parks to be ____ significant because ____. For changed things at the time, I gave ____ out of 3 because ____ (card __). My strongest criterion is ____ because ____ (card __). This still matters now because ____. However, ____. My total of ____ out of 12 supports my view because ____. The score is a judgement, not a fact.

Plan in any language. Use your book, typing or exact scribing. Record the help used.

Route Independent

Learning outcome: Evaluate the significance of a person who created change.

1 Read A–F. Use all four tests and decide which facts best support each. A card can help with more than one test.

2 Complete your own grid with a score, code, reason and limit for every row. Add the total out of 12. Be ready to defend one score.

3 Write your paragraph with two facts, your strongest test and a limit. Explain your view. Do not let the total replace your reasons.

Your own finish

In your book, complete your own four-row grid. Give each criterion a score from 0 to 3, a card code, a reason and a limit. Add the scores out of 12. Write a short paragraph with your overall view, two facts with codes, your strongest criterion, a link to now and one limit. Explain why the evidence supports your view.

Paragraph frame

I judge Rosa Parks to be ____ significant because ____. For changed things at the time, I gave ____ out of 3 because ____ (card __). My strongest criterion is ____ because ____ (card __). This still matters now because ____. However, ____. My total of ____ out of 12 supports my view because ____. The score is a judgement, not a fact.

Route Aspire

Learning outcome: Evaluate the significance of a person who created change.

1 Keep the same four-row grid and paragraph. Compare two tests: why does one have stronger support?

2 Explain how shared work and the court case limit a claim about one person. They do not erase her part.

3 Defend a score that another pupil could reasonably change. Explain how equal weights affect the total, or what extra evidence you would need.

Your own finish

In your book, complete your own four-row grid. Give each criterion a score from 0 to 3, a card code, a reason and a limit. Add the scores out of 12. Write a short paragraph with your overall view, two facts with codes, your strongest criterion, a link to now and one limit. Explain why the evidence supports your view.

A–F are new factual teaching summaries, written in 2026. No old text, speech, testimony or picture is copied. They describe the past; our scores are reasoned views about it.

A Work before the bus protest

1943–1955

In 1943, Rosa Parks became secretary of a local civil rights group. She helped record unfair treatment and worked for equal rights. Her work began years before her bus arrest.

Research basis: H1, H3.

B A refusal and arrest

1 December 1955

In Montgomery, racist bus rules kept Black and White people apart. On 1 December 1955, Parks refused to give up her seat. Police arrested her. Local groups then called for a bus boycott on 5 December.

Research basis: H1, H2.

Which test could this fact help? Why? What can it not show?

C A protest kept going by many

5 December 1955–20 December 1956

Many Black residents stayed off Montgomery buses. People walked, shared rides and raised funds. Local organisers helped the protest last. Parks's action mattered within this joint work. One person could not keep it going alone.

Research basis: H2, H5.

D A separate case changed bus law

1956

The court case Browder v. Gayle challenged bus segregation. Parks was not one of its plaintiffs. Judges ruled against the bus rules. After the court order arrived, the boycott ended. People returned to integrated buses on 21 December 1956.

Research basis: H2, H5, H6.

E Work continued in Detroit

1965–1988

Parks later lived in Detroit. From 1965 to 1988 she worked in a member of Congress's local office. She helped people with their needs and kept working for civil rights. Her public work reached beyond one bus journey.

Research basis: H1, H3.

F Public honours and remembrance

1999 and 2013

Parks received a gold medal from Congress in 1999. A statue of her was placed in the US Capitol in 2013, after her death in 2005. These are signs of wide public remembrance.

Your scored grid about Rosa Parks

Learning outcome: Evaluate the significance of a person who created change.

Copy this grid in your book. Use all four tests. Keep your own reasons. Each row needs a score, a card code, a reason and a limit.

Test	Score 0–3	Card and reason	Limit to the claim
C1 Changed things at the time	____	Card ____ Because ____	However ____
C2 Still matters now	____	Card ____ Because ____	However ____
C3 Remembered by many	____	Card ____ Because ____	However ____
C4 Revealed something	____	Card ____ Because ____	However ____

My total ____ out of 12. My strongest test is ____ because ____.

Score scale

Score	How much support
0	The cards give no clear support for this claim.
1	Some support, but narrow or limited.
2	Clear support, with a limit to explain.
3	Strong support, with a limit still kept in view.

Use the same 0–3 scale for all four rows. Add to a total out of 12. We give each criterion equal weight for this task. Different scores can be valid if the facts and reasons fit. No total has a fixed label. Scores do not rate a person’s worth or prove how many people remember her.

You may point, write, type, speak privately or direct a scribe. Reading aloud and public answers are optional. You may pass.

Your paragraph about Rosa Parks

Humanities | GROW | Spring 1 Week 4 | HUM-GROW-S1-W04

How significant was Rosa Parks, and why?

Use your grid to write a short answer in your book. State your view. Use at least two facts with card codes. Explain your strongest test and one limit. Say what this history helps us think about now.

A frame you may use

I judge Rosa Parks to be ____ significant because ____. For changed things at the time, I gave ____ out of 3 because ____ (card __). My strongest criterion is ____ because ____ (card __). This still matters now because ____. However, ____. My total of ____ out of 12 supports my view because ____. The score is a judgement, not a fact.

Reason words

Word	Use
because	gives a reason
this shows	links a fact to your view
also	adds another point
however	adds a limit
overall	introduces your final view

Check your answer

Did you explain the facts? Have you kept Parks's part and the shared work in view? Is your score supported? A total helps organise a view. It cannot decide it for you.

Use the quiet signal to ask the adult for a pause. Use the agreed supervised place. No public reason is needed. Return with one small card check or a private recap when ready.
