Invented pressure cases

All cases are made up. No real account, message, work or personal story is shown. Use only these cases for class tasks.

A A repeated choice request

An invented learner wants the quiet drawing task. Another learner keeps asking them to choose a group task instead. The learner wants to keep their own choice.

B A group makes the same choice

An invented learner sees a group choose the card tower task. No one tells them to join. They feel they must choose it to fit in, but they would like drawing.

C A request about private work

In an invented online chat, a learner gets repeated requests to share unfinished work they want to keep private. No actual message, account or work is shown.

Pressure types

Type	Meaning
Direct pressure	Someone tells or keeps asking a person to choose something.
Indirect pressure	A person feels they must copy a group to fit in, even without a direct demand.
Online pressure	Pressure happens in an online message or post. It may also be direct or indirect.

Types can overlap. A group choosing the same task is not always applying pressure. The learner can choose freely, choose differently or ask for help.

Three assertive phrases

Phrase 1

No, I am choosing my own task.

Phrase 2

Please stop asking. I want to keep my work private.

Phrase 3

I am going to ask a trusted adult for help.

Try all three phrases aloud if that suits you. Use a usual aid, type, point, hear a staff model, observe or pass. Staff give a calm cue. No pupil plays a person applying pressure. These are separate practice chances, not three refusals someone must use in real life.

A model for case A

In A, repeated requests are a direct pressure clue. A clear phrase is: No, I am choosing my own task. The learner may ask trusted school staff for help. Help is valid before a refusal too.

Help is valid now

A learner can ask a trusted adult or school staff at any time, even before saying no. If pressure continues, feels confusing or involves an unwanted online request, ask for help. The safeguarding lead helps staff act. If the first adult is busy, ask another. For an immediate concern, get adult help at once.

No one must confront the person applying pressure, repeat a refusal or stay in an unsafe situation. Do not send private content on. Ask an adult for safe report or block help online.

My private exit line

This card stays with you. Do not add a name, real event, worry or account detail. Use the invented learner, leave it blank or pass. You do not have to show or explain it.

A line I could use

_____

_____

An adult role I could ask

_____

A fictional model

I am going to ask a trusted adult for help.

Using the safe route

The line is a reminder to ask for adult support. Use the agreed signal or usual aid. Staff acknowledge it and support the familiar supervised route or private talk. Do not leave alone. You do not have to say the line to someone applying pressure. Ask for help at once if unsafe.

Keep this card private

Do not hand it in. No one collects, photographs, displays, compares or copies it into evidence. A scribe returns it to you. A blank card is supported without pressing.

Staff note: any disclosure goes to the safeguarding lead through school procedure. Listen calmly. Do not probe or promise secrecy. Keep real concerns separate from learning records. Support a pupil who cannot identify a trusted adult; do not press.

Aids for your next response

Main task choices

Words: type · clue · phrase · next step

Start: For case… I suggest…

Model: For case C, stop replying and ask staff for help.

Three phrase trials

Words: say · aid · type · observe · pass

Start: A clear request could be…

Model: Please stop asking. I want to keep my work private.

Review and exit

Words: help · role · safe route · reply

Start: They can ask…

Model: They can ask another trusted adult if help is not enough.

Two equal task choices

For all three invented cases, show the pressure type, a clue, a fitting phrase and a safe next step. Types can overlap. Both main formats have the same checks. All three phrase trials are offered in the learner usual mode. Use map B or advice C for A, B and C. Use your book, Type instead, an aid or exact scribe.

Help and a quiet pause

Point to HELP or ask a trusted adult in private. You may pass or use the pause signal agreed with staff. An adult supports the familiar safe route. No public reason is needed. Do not leave alone. Return with support, use a calm task or catch up privately.
