Arrival

Use the learner’s actual records; do not substitute class examples.

Any genuine activity or work. Keep A and C distinct.

Accept the learner’s own choice, including mixed feelings. No forced praise.

A real skill, choice or achievement. Supported participation is valid; ask for a specific example.

Starter

B gives a personal reason for enjoyment and a specific learnt skill. A only names an object. B is a class example; each learner must choose their own account.

Guided practice

The class model liked mixing shades and learnt to fix the tabs. Link each statement to the labelled sample. Pupils can prefer other aspects of their own work.

Exit

Own enjoyment and reason, linked to an actual activity.

Own achievement with a clear real example.

A feasible preferred audience and method. The owner confirms event arrangements; do not promise a booking.

Acceptable responses

The learner’s own account may differ from the class model. Check both enjoyment and achievement. Accept pointing, speech, signs, drawing or checked scribing. Do not award a part result from route choice or attendance.
