

My vocational profile

How can I bring my evidence together and choose a next question?

I can create a one-page profile showing what I am good at, what I like and jobs I want to explore.

Use your own safe examples or the fictional case. Share only what you choose.

Words that help

VOCATIONAL PROFILE

A short record of strengths, interests, preferences and possible next steps.

PROVISIONAL

Open to change after new experience or information.

Start here

Find one strength, one interest and one useful condition in your earlier work.

No earlier sheets? Use Sam's complete profile card.

Which is supported by an example?

A profile is a starting point

Record strengths and the actions that support them.

Add interests, ways of working and questions.

Choose areas to explore; you do not need a final job today.

Can a profile change next term?

Sam brings evidence together

Sam plans ingredients, follows steps and adjusts a model after feedback.

Sam likes practical making and seeing a finished result.

Written steps and time to ask a question help Sam.

Suggest an area and a reason, without deciding Sam's future.

Turn an area into a next step

Area: practical food work.

Question: which tasks are part of a typical day?

Action: ask the teacher to help compare two role descriptions next lesson.

What makes that action manageable?

Check the profile

A: “Good at everything; will definitely be a chef.”

B: “Plans ingredients; could explore food roles; needs to check typical tasks.”

Which profile uses evidence and leaves a useful question?

Your three tasks

1. Gather the strongest evidence: Use earlier sheets or Sam's full card.
2. Create the profile: Write or draw a one-page profile using the headings below.
- 3. Set one first target: Choose a small action with help and a review point.

Your three tasks — continued

Use the worksheet and resource cards. Work one task at a time.

Check and improve

I can collect strengths, interests and useful conditions.

I can link an area to evidence in a profile.

I can choose one small next action.

Choose one part to make clearer. Which detail supports your answer?

Save your evidence

Completed vocational profile and first career target.

Mark the work: my own example / fictional case analysis.

Keep one question open for your next lesson.

Which piece shows today's learning?

Exit check

Name one area to explore, an evidence-based reason and a next step.

Answer using words, pointing, a sketch or a private adult conversation.
