

Judge it against the brief

Use the wrap recipe again, or evaluate the supplied fictional product record.

Our question is: does the product meet its checks?

What counts as stronger evidence than “I like it”?

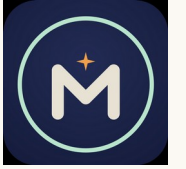

Words that help

BRIEF

The job a product must do.

CRITERION

One check in a brief.

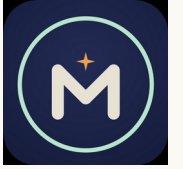

The lunch-club brief

Make one snack wrap using the agreed ingredients and safe routine.

It must hold its filling and be ready within 15 minutes of making time.

Illustrative ingredient-used cost must be no more than £1 per wrap.

Name one check you can observe without eating.

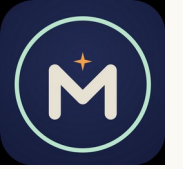

Three possible verdicts

Met: the evidence shows the criterion was achieved.

Not yet: the evidence shows it was missed.

Need evidence: we cannot tell from the record.

No one recorded a label check. Can we assume it happened?

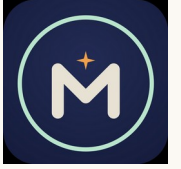

What did this portion cost?

Illustrative amounts used: tortilla 25p, chickpeas 20p, cucumber 10p, soft cheese 15p.

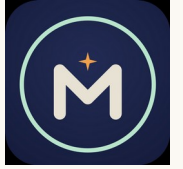

Add: $25 + 20 + 10 + 15 = 70\text{p}$.

Buying all four packs would cost £5.70 in this example.

Why is 70p different from £5.70?

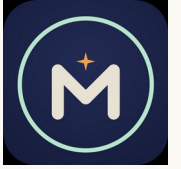

Check a fictional product

Product A: 12-minute make, filling stays inside, 70p ingredient-used cost.

Adult record: labels checked, routine followed, clean tools used and unused chilled food returned.

Which brief checks does Product A meet?

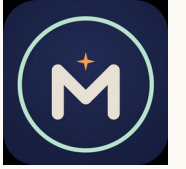

Make or inspect

Use the full wrap recipe with pre-prepared ingredients, or inspect the fictional evidence cards.

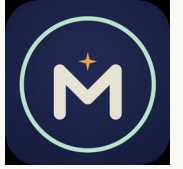

Assign maker/reader, checker and recorder roles.

Gather evidence for safety, function, time and cost.

What evidence will your recorder collect first?

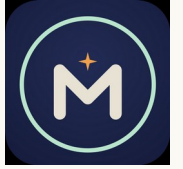

Choose a useful improvement

Product B cost 110p and its filling spilled from the sides.

It was ready in 13 minutes and the adult confirmed the routine.

Choose one change that addresses an unmet criterion.

What would you change and recheck?

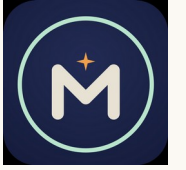

Write the verdict

Use: “The ____ check is met / not yet / needs evidence because ____.”

Add: “Next time I will ____, then check ____.”

Reset the station, or return evidence cards and clear the desk.

Does an improvement need a reason?

Evidence before judgement

A photo shows a neat wrap. There is no ingredient or hygiene record.

Can the photo prove every check is met?
