Matching answers

Rosa Parks: kept her bus seat in 1955; challenged unfair treatment of Black people on buses; fairness aim Black people should be treated fairly. Millicent Fawcett: led peaceful campaigning with others for women's votes; fairness aim women should have a fair say in who makes rules. Portrait A/left is Parks; B/right is Fawcett. Read both labels privately and accept a point or directed placement.

Starter and hinge

Starter cue bus seat matches Rosa Parks; vote matches Millicent Fawcett. I do recognition check: A/left is Parks. Hinge: peaceful group for women's votes matches Fawcett/B. Parallel hinge: bus-seat action matches Parks/A. If a name is hard to read, supply it and check the name/action link separately. This is recognition, not a decoding test.

Historical precision

Parks refused a demand to vacate her seat for a white passenger on 1 December 1955 under segregation. Her action helped mobilise a wider community bus boycott; many people had already campaigned, and a separate court case challenged bus segregation. Fawcett led a peaceful national suffrage union formed in 1897, with talks and lobbying. She worked with many other people over many years. Do not claim either person single-handedly won rights.

National parliamentary voting rights reached some women aged 30 and over under qualifying rules in 1918; equal voting terms with men arrived in 1928 for ages 21 and over. These dates are staff context, not the minimum pupil task. Do not say all women gained the vote in 1918.

Sensitive discussion

State the unfair treatment plainly and calmly. Do not reenact segregated seating, ask pupils to argue for exclusion or request personal discrimination experiences. Pupils can use private choices, pass or take the agreed step out. Standing up means taking action for fairness; Parks stayed seated during the bus event. The portraits are newly made teaching drawings, not archival evidence.

Prompts and exact scribing

1 Point to the name, picture or instruction. 2 Ask a short private question. 3 Rephrase. 4 Give two choices or a scaffold. 5 Model the first link only and return the task. Pupil chooses both people and links, then one line; adult records exact words or selected phrases, reads back privately, and asks Keep or change? Record actual help.

Private participation check

Code	Both recognition links and line	Actual mode or help
Pupil number: ____	_____	_____
Pupil number: ____	_____	_____
Pupil number: ____	_____	_____
Pupil number: ____	_____	_____

Use the fourth pupil-number field only if present. Leave absent and unknown outcomes blank. Keep word bank, stem and visible model on every task and route. No public questions, cold calling or required reading aloud.

Feedback and evidence

Retain Voice and an actual audience reply, one NS and the pupil's response in the same colour, on the same page or usual mode before R. E follows actual banking. Offer the authentic explanation to the Communication portfolio. Staff check the qualification and evidence record separately; no completion claim is made.

Calendar and next decision

International Women's Day was on 8 March this month; this lesson is 18 March, not on the observance day. If name/action links are secure, fade adult sentence completion. If unsure, return to bus and vote cues, read labels and check privately. Week 5 assessment rows are set by the owner.
