Tuesday 2 March 2027, P5

Hope and feelings about change reading cards

Pink supported print

Hope and change

Hope means wanting something good to happen. Change means something is different. A change can bring more than one feeling. Someone may feel glad and worried at the same time. We cannot tell every feeling from a face. We can ask, or we can listen. We will talk about made-up pupils today. A pupil will join a new group. The pupil feels worried about where to sit. The pupil hopes to find a kind partner. An adult shows a seat and a clear first task. This may help. The pupil may still feel worried. The adult can check in again.

Trying again

A pupil’s model falls apart. The pupil feels sad and cross. The pupil hopes to make it stand. A partner asks before helping. They try one small step. The model may need more work. Hope can help someone try, but it does not promise that a task will work at once.

Hope in a belief

In the Christian Easter story, Jesus had died and his friends felt sad. Christians believe he rose from death. For Christians, Easter brings hope and new life. People with other beliefs, or no religion, may find hope in other ways. We can listen with respect. No pupil has to share a belief or a private feeling.

Learn about these ideas without sharing your own belief. An adult can reread a short part.

Cards to discuss

A

A pupil joins a new group. They hope for a kind partner.

B

A pupil’s model falls apart. They hope to try again.

C

A pupil finishes a first step. They hope to learn more.

D

A pupil feels worried after getting help.