Tuesday 23 March 2027, P5

My respectful view and reflection page reading cards

White standard print

A view with respect

A view is what someone thinks. People may have different views. We can use kind words. We can say: I think. We can listen or give someone space. We do not need to agree. We can ask a calm question. We do not call a person silly for having a different view. No one has to talk about a private event or a belief.

Tuesday 23 March 2027, P5

A small choice about care

Choose a question about a kind action. Is it helpful to ask before helping? Could a small first step help with a new start? You can share a simple view about one question. You can point to words, speak, draw or use a scribe. An adult will record what you mean. You may pass and return when you are ready.

Tuesday 23 March 2027, P5

My reflection page

We learnt about hope and new starts. Easter in Christianity celebrates Jesus rising from death. Rosh Hashanah in Judaism marks the Jewish new year. Both can link with hope. They are different festivals. We also thought about feelings and care. On your page, show one learning idea and your own view. Add a kind action or a small next step. You may use a drawing and spoken labels. An adult may write your exact words.

Learn about these ideas without sharing your own belief. An adult can reread a short part.

Cards to discuss

A

View question: Is it helpful to ask before helping?

B

View question: Can a small first step help with a new start?

C

Respectful start: I think ____. Another view could be ____.

D

Reflection frame: One thing we learnt was ____. My view is ____. A kind action could be ____.