We do • make a choice and give a reason

A BAPS page describes diyas, rangoli, worship and gathering. Which conclusion is defensible?

- This BAPS source gives examples from one Hindu tradition; practices and meanings can vary.
- Every Hindu person celebrates Diwali in exactly this way.
- Diwali is only celebrated inside India.

Enquiry

How do place, movement and community shape where a festival is celebrated—without making faith equal nationality?

Independent mission

Create a three-case festival geography board. For each case: plot one example location or global-reach statement, record meaning/practice from the named source, and add a variation/limitation label. No personal faith disclosure is required.

Supported route

Complete two case cards using provided phrases; plot two examples; add 'This source cannot represent ____.'

Prompt frame: Source ____ shows that some ____ communities _____. One example place is _____. This does not mean _____.

Standard route

Complete three sourced case cards with location/reach, meaning, practice and one respectful qualification each.

Method: Example location/reach → creator → meaning → practice → variation/limitation.

Stretch route

Compare how source perspective and map scale alter the story; repair one misleading 'faith = country' claim.

Method: Map selection + source perspective → misleading inference → evidence-led repair.

BAPS-LDN • community event account • adapted factual note: BAPS Shri Swaminarayan Mandir in London says its 12 November 2023 Diwali event brought together thousands from the local community and further afield. It describes hope, light and goodwill, Sharda Pujan, prayers, food, service and community participation. One London Swaminarayan Hindu institution and one year; practice varies.

WJC · representative-organisation news account · adapted factual note: A 19 December 2006 report documents a Hanukkah candle-lighting in Beijing and mentions menorahs in cities across the United States. An older selected news account is not current distribution data or every community’s practice.

WCC · ecumenical feature · adapted factual note: A 9 January 2025 feature brings together Christmas messages and examples from places including Karlsruhe in Germany and churches across the Pacific, alongside other regions. Selected member-church examples are not a survey of all Christian communities.
