

My career profile and enquiry plan

What evidence and questions should guide my next investigation?

I can produce a profile, shortlist 2–3 career areas and set questions that will help me test whether they suit me.

Use your own safe examples or the fictional case. Share only what you choose.

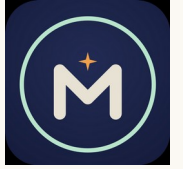

Words that help

SYNTHESISE

Bring evidence together to make a coherent account.

PROVISIONAL PROFILE

A current summary that can change with new information.

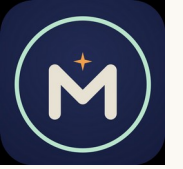

Start here

Find one specific action, one value and one unknown in earlier work.

No earlier sheets? Use Sam's complete evidence card.

Which claim needs checking before it enters the profile?

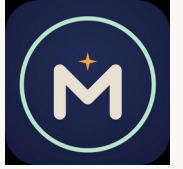

Build a profile with limits

Summarise strengths, skills, interests and helpful conditions.

Choose two or three areas using at least two criteria each.

Include uncertainty; a useful plan can change your mind.

Should the final profile hide a possible mismatch?

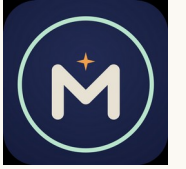

Sam's profile — evidence first

Sam plans materials, explains steps, revises a model and formats a title file.

Sam enjoys practical making, food tasks and visible results.

Clear written steps and opportunities to ask questions help.

Suggest a supported profile summary and its limits.

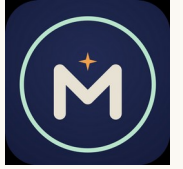

Make enquiries decision-useful

Role: What does a typical day involve?

Route: Which current entry routes apply to this specific role?

Conditions: What support or working arrangements should be discussed?

How can the answer change a shortlist?

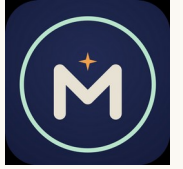

An action plan or a wish?

A: “Get my perfect job.”

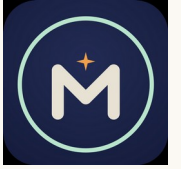

B: “Next lesson, compare two role profiles with staff and record one fact and question for each.”

Which is actionable and reviewable?

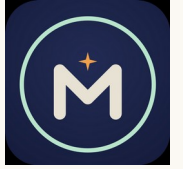

Your three tasks

1. Synthesise the profile: Use your portfolio or Sam's complete case. Label the choice.
2. Justify a shortlist: Select two or three areas with two criteria for each; record a possible mismatch or unknown.
- 3. Write an enquiry plan: Include three purposeful questions, a source or person and one timed next action.

Use the worksheet and resource cards. Work one task at a time.

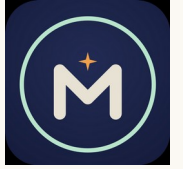

Check and improve

I can synthesise strengths and skills with specific evidence.

I can justify a shortlist of two or three areas.

I can plan enquiries that could confirm or change my thinking.

Choose one part to make clearer. Which detail supports your answer?
