Evidence cards A and B

A · Prayer hall

Many mosque prayer halls have open carpeted space so people can pray in rows. Chairs or other changes may help people who find it hard to stand, bow or kneel.

Mosques differ in size and design.

B · Mihrab and minbar

A mihrab is a niche in the wall. It shows the direction Muslims face for prayer, towards the holy city. A minbar is a raised platform. The imam uses it to give a talk.

Evidence cards C and D

C · Washing area

Many Muslims wash in a set way before prayer. This is called wudu. Mosques provide a washing area. People leave shoes at the door.

Practice can vary between people and groups.

D · Community use

Many mosques run classes, food banks and shared meals. A mosque can serve its community as well as being a place of worship.

The activities on offer vary from mosque to mosque.

Shared investigation

Match each feature to its purpose. Say whether the use is worship, community or both. One person suggests a match and the other checks the card. Swap or work on your own.

1. Match the open carpeted floor to its purpose.
2. Match the washing area to its purpose.
3. Match the mihrab to its purpose.

Worked model

Ask about a feature

Name one feature of a mosque and its purpose. Start with picture 2 and card B.

Read the evidence

It is a mihrab. It shows the direction Muslims face for prayer.

Link feature and purpose

The mihrab shows the direction for prayer. People face a set direction as they pray. The feature helps show that direction.

Check the claim

No. Many also serve the community. Card D describes classes, food banks and community meals.
