Evidence cards A and B

A · Good questions

“What does your usual practice look like for you?” “Which festival means most to you, and why?” Open, curious and about the person’s own experience.

A visitor speaks for themselves, not for everyone who shares their worldview.

B · Questions to avoid

Questions such as “Why do you lot...?” stereotype people. Agree topics with the visitor first. The visitor can decline any question, and pupils may choose to listen. Do not ask anyone to speak for a whole worldview.

If unsure, check the question with an adult first.

Evidence cards C and D

C · a Humanist celebrant: a real celebrant

a Humanist celebrant explains that she trained to lead Humanist naming ceremonies after her daughter asked her to lead a beach ceremony for her grandsons. She describes these as non-religious occasions that welcome a child. Families help shape each ceremony; examples include planting a tree or reading a poem. Paraphrased from a public account.

This is a paraphrase of one real person’s public account. It cannot tell us what every Humanist thinks.

D · Three areas

Belief: what do you believe? Practice: what do you do? Community: who do you share it with?

Not every question fits one area.

Shared investigation

Sort each class question: belief, practice or community. Check each against the boundaries. Take a turn to suggest a match, then check the evidence.

1. Which question is about community?
2. Which question is about practice?
3. What should you check before asking a question about belief?

Worked model

Ask the question

What does ___ mean to you? Use card A. Card A asks open questions about a person’s experience.

Find the evidence

Card A asks open questions about a person’s experience. An open question gives the visitor space to choose what to share.

Explain the link

Check questions about belief, practice and community with an adult. The source shows ____. This helps me explain ____.

Check what we know

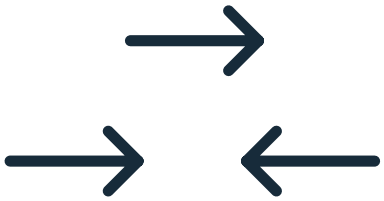

No. A visitor speaks from their own experience. The visitor can decline and pupils may choose to listen.

You do · Aspire

Staff mark I · S · C beside the task.

1. Start in your book. Write an open question answered by the celebrant’s account, then a follow-up question.
2. Record the supported answer. Mark a follow-up as unanswered if the source does not tell you.
3. Explain how this person’s experience may differ from others’.

Word bank: lived experience · respectful question · open question · boundary.
