A big question about change

Discuss a 'big question' about change respectfully.

Resilience & Change

Our big question

Does change make us stronger?

Stronger can mean a skill, confidence or a helpful way to cope.

Asking for support can be part of this.

One invented example

A group changes the order of two familiar tasks.

One person likes the new order. Another finds it hard to follow.

A clear plan and time to practise may help.

The group can explain what works and ask for changes.

Our discussion protocol

Our move	How
Listen	Let the speaker finish, or read their idea.
Build	Add an idea or ask a kind question.
Disagree kindly	Talk about the idea and give a reason.
Pass	Pass, pause or return later.

Eye contact and stillness are not required.

A possible Christian viewpoint

Some Christians may find hope in God's care during change.

Prayer, thinking and help from others may support them.

Change can help, hurt or do both. A person may need time, rest or a safer situation.

A possible viewpoint. People may differ.

A possible humanist viewpoint

Some humanists may use experience, reason and kindness to respond to change.

They do not rely on gods. Help from others may support them.

Change can help, hurt or do both. A person may need time, rest or a safer situation.

A possible viewpoint. People may differ.

My answer for now

Sometimes. Not always. It depends. Not sure.

My reason is ____.

I can use a card or the invented example.

A respectful reply

Which response disagrees kindly?

A Only my answer can be right.

B I see it differently because ____.

Try a reason or a kind question.

My short reflection

My answer for now is ____ because ____.

Another idea I heard or read is ____.

Write about 2 short sentences or tell an adult what to scribe.

Exit

What idea did you hear or read?

How did you respond?

You may speak privately, point, pass or return later.
